Trap Regiment

SAIGON (AP) — A veteran Communist regiment of almost 3,000 men in a fortified ridgeline was under steady assault today by more than 2,000 Marines aided by air and artillery strikes.

The Red regiment was reported to have lost 372 dead in the preceding 24 hours while fighting to retain its stronghold in Quang Tin Procine a bare 25 miles south of the main U.S. Marine base at Da Nang.

Leathernecks sweeping through the foothills 18 miles in from the China Sea have been battering at the Communit unit for a week, killing 571 Reds.

In the past 24 hours the Marines appear to have pinned down the regiment on a three-mile ridgeline rising some 600 feet above a valley of paddy-fields and streams.

Another force of about 2,000 Marines made an amphibious assault landing 21 miles northeast of Hue in a move to cut one of the infiltration routes of North Vietnamese troops.

The war in the air also rose in intensity, with raids penetrating north of Hanoi Friday. Two American jets were downed, making 569 planes lost over North Vietnam.

The Navy put the Leatherneck amphibious force ashore in isolated dunes about 25 miles below the demilitarized zone. More Marines were landed by helisopter about six miles inland.

The sudden landing was made Friday and announced today. Military reports listed no immediate contact with the enemy.

The landing is designed to sweep out Communist controlled areas just above the Viet Cong strongold known as the "Street Without Joy" because of its long and bloody history of guerrilla fighting.

The South Vietnamese claimed they chopped up the crack 808th Viet Cong mobile battalion in battle Friday a few miles below the zone and above Quang Trie City, the province capital. The Red battalion of some 600 men lost 200 dead to air, artillery and infantry pounding in a running battle.

The latest Marine clash erupted in full force Friday about noon. It continued through the night and into today, sometimes with Marines and Communists grappling at bayonet point.

The destroyer Bigelow cruised off the coast with its big guns ready to provide support for the infantrymen.

The last amphibious assault in the northernmost areas was May 18 when Marines were landed for the first time inside the demilitarized zone.

In air action U.S. pilots reported several dogfights with Communist MIG interceptors Friday during raids on rail facilities northeast of Hanoi. No U.S. or enemy planes were immediately listed as downed.

The U.S. Command said several battalions of Marines were

Boston Police Stay On Alert After Rioting

Rock-Throwing, Looting Kicked Off By Demonstration

BOSTON (AP)—Police maintained an uneasy vigil in the predominantly Negro Grove Hall section today after a night of looting and rock-throwing touched off by a welfare demonstration.

Police formed assault lines repeatedly throughout the night to clear the streets.

At least 24 policemen, one fireman and 18 civilians were injured.

At least 33 men and 11 women were arrested. They were charged variously with trespassing, taking part in an affray or assault on police officers.

Police fired a volley of shots over the heads of demonstrators at one point, saying a sniper had fired on them.

The crowd swelled to about 500 persons at the height of the disturbance as windows of businesses were smashed amidst reports of widespread looting.

There was no estimate of damage.

Officials called out 1,700 policemen and sent about 1,000 of them into the trouble spot, a 5- to 10-block area of the Roxbury section.

The disturbance began late Friday afternoon when about 30 welfare recipients capped a day-and-night sit-in by bolting the front door of a city welfare office in the Grove Hall section.

The demonstrators were members of an organization called "Mothers for Adequate Welfare," a group composed of both negroes and whites, but predominantly Negro.

Fifty-eight welfare workers were locked inside when the women took up positions on the first floor of the building, guarding the door they had locked.

Police climbed into the building through windows and formed a flying wedge to force out the women. Several women were carried to police wagons.

A crowd of more than 500 persons gathered outside the building and continued to hold most of the welfare workers inside. Police called for reinforcements. About 150 policemen were assembled at the height of the disturbance.

They left in groups of two or three escorted by Negro leaders.

For Study In Ohio

Tax Proposals To Be Presented

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The clouded issue of new taxes will start to come into focus next week with reports from study committees reviewing the needs of education and possible revenue sources.

The State Tax Study Commission will meet Monday in an effort to finalize its report slated for adoption at an open meeting in the statehouse Thursday.

A spokesman said the 15-member commission, created by the last legislature, will present "four or five package deals" for consideration of the governor's so-called super committee.

It was learned that a state income tax and an increase in the sales tax — both in rate and base — are among the proposals. The commission will make no specific recommendation, the spokesman said.

The super committee, known officially as the State Supported Education Review Committee, will meet Wednesday in an effort to complete its list of education needs.

They will include addition of about $220 million to the outlay in the 1967-69 budget for education. A proposed addition of $160 million for elementary and secondary education would boost that total to a record $866 million. A $60 million increase for higher education would hike that appropriation to about $313 million.

Plans call for the super committee to receive the report of the Tax Study Commission the week after next. It will be up to the super committee to pick one of the package plans for submission to the legislature.

Reports around the statehouse have it that Gov. James A. Rhodes, up to now an outspoken opponent of new or increased taxes, will stand still only for increases to meet needs of education. Anything beyond that apparently will be "a legislative matter," one official said.

Word on the school and taxation plans came Friday as the General Assembly ended a later than usual work week and headed home for weekend recess. The lawmakers held an unusual Friday session because of the Memorial Day holiday.

Ham radio operators, physicians, and others who buy special license tags would be interested in a measure recommended for passage by the Senate Urban and Highway Affairs Committee. The bill would raise the fee for the special tags from $1 to $5, affecting an estimated 115,000 motor-

The same committee also voted to provide special plates for rural mail carriers at a yearly fee of $5.

In other developments, the House passed and sent to the Senate a measure seeking to prevent harassment by creditors in garnishee actions. Present law requires a county court judge to name a "suitable person" as trustee in insolvency cases at a fee of two per cent of the sum collected from the debtor.

The bill by Rep. William H. Mussey R-12 Clermont requires the judge to appoint his clerk as trustee and wipes out the fee. Mussey said the change would bar attachment proceedings against a debtor's earnings by creditors listed in the application so long as the debtor pays his earnings to the trustee at fixed intervals.

The House defeated by a 33-40 vote a measure to double $10 annual oven fees of bakeries under a revised definition of bakeries. Two other measures were approved by the lower chamber and sent to the Senate.

One makes firefighters contracting heart or lung disease as a result of their employment eligible for workmen's compensation.

The other conveys farm land at the now defunct Athens State Hospital to the Sheltering Arms Hospital Foundation for $9,900 plus benefits accruing to Ohio University by use of the property for health and educational purposes. Proceeds go into the general fund of the university which was given control of the land by a former legislature.

Rep. Ralph Welker R-27 Meigs, sponsor of the bill, said it is an initial step in a master plan by the city of Athens and the university for a general hospital, health care, and nursing center.

The Senate passed and sent to the House a measure by Sen. Paul Gillmor R-12 Seneca to eliminate a requirement for

British Chief Winds Up His Capital Visit

Wilson Reported In Agreement On Mid East Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Britain winds up a brief Washington visit today in apparent agreement with President Johnson on the need for urgent efforts to head off a Middle East war—a potential conflict he warns could swiftly spread.

Wilson had a breakfast meeting with Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey as the last item in his two-day call at the U.S. capital. Then he planned to fly to New York for a business lunch with Secretary-General U Thant of the United Nations.

In between his White House visits Friday, Wilson told a news conference that if a peaceful solution to Egypt's avowed blockade of the Gulf of Aqaba is not worked out "a very, very dangerous state" would be reached in the tinder box area.

In that event the possibility "not only of a local conflict but a much larger conflict might be only a matter of hours," he said.

Wilson called premature at this time newsmen's questions whether force might be used eventually to break Egypt's proclaimed anti- Israel blockade of the narrow gulf which links Israel to the Red Sea.

He said efforts for a settlement will focus first on discussions at the United Nations and on a U.S.-British proposal for a maritime nation declaration.

The proposed declaration now being circulated among the various maritime capitals would, as Wilson put it, be "a general assertion of the right of free passage" by ships through the Gulf of Aqaba and its entrance, the Strait of Tiran.

The general aim of the maritime declaration, which Israel says she will sign, would be to mount pressure on Egypt not to blockade.

Wilson also warned against any close-off of the Suez Canal, although he said that question is only hypothetical so far. His questioner had referred to Egyptian press reports that countries taking Israel's side in the dispute faced refusal by Egypt to allow their ships through the canal.

Wilson said the canal is covered by a convention making it an international waterway.

U.S. Handed Soviet Note In Bombing

Russians Charge Jets Attack Vessel Off North Vietnam

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet charge that two U.S. jets bombed a Russian ship off North Vietnam killing one crewman and injuring six, heightened chances today of a showdown with Moscow over raids by American planes in areas of Soviet shipping.

Shortly after Moscow received a report Friday from the captain of the Soviet ship Turkistan, Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko handed a sharp protest to the U.S. embassy's minister-counsellor, John C. Guthrie.

"In the event of a recurrence of such actions on the part of U.S. armed forces," Gromyko's note reportedly said, "the Soviet Union will be compelled to take appropriate measures to ensure the safety of its ships.

"The Soviet government insists, firstly, on the strict punishment of those responsible for the attack on the Soviet ship and, secondly, awaits assurances that there will be no recurrence of actions like this in respect of Soviet ships."

The U.S. Embassy had no immediate comment and forwarded the note to Washington.

The United States neither confirmed nor denied that U.S. planes bombed the ship, which the Soviets said was anchored in the harbor of Cam Pha, 50 miles north of Haiphong.

U.S. spokesmen have noted that American planes have tried to avoid hitting Soviet or other foreign vessels in raids along the North Vietnamese coast. The United States has answered earlier Soviet charges of hitting ships by saying that falling North Vietnamese antiaircraft shells were to blame.

Pravda, the official Communist party newspaper, printed the protest note on its front page today.

It commented: "It would be a mistake if the provacateurs did not fully consider the seriousness of the warning in the Soviet government's note. The sponsors of this kind of provocation evidently have a poor understanding of the situation and do not fully consider that they may be given a fitting rebuff."

The Soviet news agency Tass reported from Vladivostok than an electro-mechanic named "Rybachuk" died three hours after the Friday raid. A motor-mechanic named "Zemtzev" was reported in critical condition after a three-hour operation. Tass also said that "there were five lightly wounded" and that "there are bullet holes in the upper structure and the ship's boats."

Tass said the Turkestan, a diesel cargo ship, was carrying coal from Gam Pha to Japan.

"Eyewitnesses," said Tass, "confirm that two American planes came in from two sides to bomb the Turkestan.

Battle Shapes Up

Move To Curtail Guard, Reserves Stirs Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Congress disturbed by the extent of U.S. military commitments in Vietnam while the Middle East is in turmoil views with hostile suspicion the Pentagon's move to trim Army National Guard and Reserve forces.

The Defense Department announced Friday a realignment of the Guard and Reserve that would eliminate nearly 1,275 units scattered across the country.

This would lop off 15 Guard divisions, each with its own local pride and traditions, producing 8 combat divisions and 18 brigades with the aim of having them ready to fight within eight weeks of callup.

The Guard and Reserve would drop from their present authorized total strength of 685,000 to 640,000.

Stanley Resor, secretary of the Army, disclosed at the same time a proposal that draftees who complete two years of service may not be assigned to reserve units for the additional four years of their military obligation. He said this would affect about 30,000 men in Guard and Reserve units to be abolished.

While Cyrus R. Vance, deputy a bill to lower the manpower floor of the Army Reserve would have to be passed. The proposed strength of 240,000 for the Reserve is 20,000 below the floor provided in current law.

Congress, traditionally sensitive to the retention of armories and drill payrolls in local communities, in the past has added riders to military money bills putting a floor of 400,000 on the number of National Guardmen and 260,000 on Army Reservists who must receive regular drill pay.

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., who objected strongly in advance of the move, served notice he will fight for retention of a "strong and ready" Reserve force.

President Johnson has refrained from calling up any reserves in the Vietnam conflict but some congressmen think such a move would be necessary by any sizable American military involvement in the Middle East, where Arab-Israeli tensions continue to simmer.

Stennis, who heads the Senate Preparedness subcommittee, called the United States already over-extended in military commitments. He said ready reserves "must be supported fully with equipment, facilities and

For An 'Open' Gulf

International Law Cited On Behalf Of U.S. Stand

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Department lawyers maintain international law amply supports the U.S. position that the Gulf of Aqaba should be open to ships of all nations.

The gulf is Israel's link to the Red Sea—and Egypt's proclaimed anti-Israel blockade of the narrow waterway is a central issue of the Middle East crisis.

President Johnson has branded such a blockade illegal and the U.S. government is pushing for a maritime nations declaration in behalf of international passage through the gulf.

The State Department's legal authorities said the Gulf of Aqaba has an international character because there are four nations on its shores— Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Jordan and Israel.

Also, part of the gulf is what's known in maritime law as "high seas" because it is 15 miles wide at its broadest point. National territorial waters, according to the U.S. position, extend only three miles from the shoreline.

One important portion of the waterway does come under Egypt's territorial jurisdiction. This is the Strait of Tiran, which must be used by ships entering the gulf. This strait is about four miles wide at the narrowest point.

State Department lawyers say the landmark international law decision covering the Gulf of Aqaba situation was the 1949 Corfu case. The Strait of Corfu is a passageway in Albanian territorial waters which connects two parts of the high seas of the Adriatic.

Albania tried to close the Corfu strait and mined it. Two British cruisers hit the Albanian mines.

The case went to the World Court, which ruled against Albania and in favor of the right of free passage through the strait.

The 1958 Geneva convention on law of the seas reaffirmed this principle. One article of this convention says: "There shall be no suspension of the innocent passage of foreign ships through straits which are used for international navigation between one part of the high seas and another part of the high seas or the territorial sea of a foreign state."

Another provision of the convention says: "Passage is innocent so long as it is not prejudicial to the peace, good order or security of the coastal state."

Intense Talks Set On Compromise In Mid East Dispute

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The U.N. Security Council began another round of debate on the Middle East crisis today, but voting on rival proposals has been postponed until early next week to permit further efforts to break a deadlock which threatened to bar council action.

The 10 nonpermanent members of the council planned a weekend of intense diplomatic talks on a compromise plan being pushed by India and Ethiopia which would appeal to Israel and the Arab countries to avoid inflammatory actions.

The unusual Saturday session was called to order at 10:36 a.m. EDT—shortly before British Prime Minister Harold Wilson was scheduled to arrive at U.N. headquarters for a private luncheon with Secretary-General U Thant.

The key stumbling block appeared to be Egypt's announced determination, as yet untested, to bar Israeli shipping from the Gulf of Aqaba.

Ambassador Hans R. Tabor of Denmark, council president for June, called the 15-nation council into session after two days of inconclusive private conversations, principally among the 10 nonpermanent members. Representatives of Britain, Argentina, Israel, Bulgaria, Syria and Morocco were listed to speak.

The council had before it two resolutions—one by the United States urging a cooling-off period and a search for a solution through diplomatic means. The other, presented by Egypt, blames Israel for the trouble and calls for reactivation of the Egyptian-Israel Mixed Armistice Commission.

The belief was widespread that the Soviet Union would veto the U.S. resolutions because of Arab objections if the United States were able to muster the necessary nine votes needed for adoption. There was also doubt that nine council members would support the U.S. plan.

With India taking a leading role, the nonpermanent council members were attempting to work out a compromise along the lines of the U.S. proposal.

Arab nations consider the U.S. resolution aimed at them. The United States wants Egypt to hold in abeyance any enforcement of its blockade of Israeli shipping in the Gulf of Aqaba while the search for a diplomatic settlement of the dispute goes on.

One compromise resolution being considered by the nonpermanent members, it was understood, would urge restraint on

A $60 million increase for higher education would hike that appropriation to about $313 million.

Plans call for the super committee to receive the report of the Tax Study Commission the week after next. It will be up to the super committee to pick one of the package plans for submission to the legislature.

Reports around the statehouse have it that Gov. James A. Rhodes, up to now an outspoken opponent of new or increased taxes, will stand still only for increases to meet needs of education. Anything beyond that apparently will be "a legislative matter," one official said.

Word on the school and taxation plans came Friday as the General Assembly ended a later than usual work week and headed home for weekend recess. The lawmakers held an unusual Friday session because of the Memorial Day holiday.

Ham radio operators, physicians, and others who buy special license tags would be interested in a measure recommended for passage by the Senate Urban and Highway Affairs Committee. The bill would raise the fee for the special tags from $1 to $5, affecting an estimated 115,000 motor-

The same committee also voted to provide special plates for rural mail carriers at a yearly fee of $5.

In other developments, the House passed and sent to the Senate a measure seeking to prevent harassment by creditors in garnishee actions. Present law requires a county court judge to name a "suitable person" as trustee in insolvency cases at a fee of two per cent of the sum collected from the debtor.

The bill by Rep. William H. Mussey R-12 Clermont requires the judge to appoint his clerk as trustee and wipes out the fee. Mussey said the change would bar attachment proceedings against a debtor's earnings by creditors listed in the application so long as the debtor pays his earnings to the trustee at fixed intervals.

The House defeated by a 33-40 vote a measure to double $10 annual oven fees of bakeries under a revised definition of bakeries. Two other measures were approved by the lower chamber and sent to the Senate.

One makes firefighters contracting heart or lung disease as a result of their employment eligible for workmen's compensation.

The other conveys farm land at the now defunct Athens State Hospital to the Sheltering Arms Hospital Foundation for $9,900 plus benefits accruing to Ohio University by use of the property for health and educational purposes. Proceeds go into the general fund of the university which was given control of the land by a former legislature.

Rep. Ralph Welker R-27 Meigs, sponsor of the bill, said it is an initial step in a master plan by the city of Athens and the university for a general hospital, health care, and nursing center.

The Senate passed and sent to the House a measure by Sen. Paul Gillmor R-12 Seneca to eliminate a requirement for

British Chief Winds Up His Capital Visit

Wilson Reported In Agreement On Mid East Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Britain winds up a brief Washington visit today in apparent agreement with President Johnson on the need for urgent efforts to head off a Middle East war—a potential conflict he warns could swiftly spread.

Wilson had a breakfast meeting with Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey as the last item in his two-day call at the U.S. capital. Then he planned to fly to New York for a business lunch with Secretary-General U Thant of the United Nations.

In between his White House visits Friday, Wilson told a news conference that if a peaceful solution to Egypt's avowed blockade of the Gulf of Aqaba is not worked out "a very, very dangerous state" would be reached in the tinder box area.

In that event the possibility "not only of a local conflict but a much larger conflict might be only a matter of hours," he said.

Wilson called premature at this time newsmen's questions whether force might be used eventually to break Egypt's proclaimed anti- Israel blockade of the narrow gulf which links Israel to the Red Sea.

He said efforts for a settlement will focus first on discussions at the United Nations and on a U.S.-British proposal for a maritime nation declaration.

The proposed declaration now being circulated among the various maritime capitals would, as Wilson put it, be "a general assertion of the right of free passage" by ships through the Gulf of Aqaba and its entrance, the Strait of Tiran.

The general aim of the maritime declaration, which Israel says she will sign, would be to mount pressure on Egypt not to blockade.

Wilson also warned against any close-off of the Suez Canal, although he said that question is only hypothetical so far. His questioner had referred to Egyptian press reports that countries taking Israel's side in the dispute faced refusal by Egypt to allow their ships through the canal.

Wilson said the canal is covered by a convention making it an international waterway.

For An 'Open' Gulf

International Law Cited On Behalf Of U.S. Stand

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Department lawyers maintain international law amply supports the U.S. position that the Gulf of Aqaba should be open to ships of all nations.

The gulf is Israel's link to the Red Sea—and Egypt's proclaimed anti-Israel blockade of the narrow waterway is a central issue of the Middle East crisis.

President Johnson has branded such a blockade illegal and the U.S. government is pushing for a maritime nations declaration in behalf of international passage through the gulf.

The State Department's legal authorities said the Gulf of Aqaba has an international character because there are four nations on its shores— Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Jordan and Israel.

Also, part of the gulf is what's known in maritime law as "high seas" because it is 15 miles wide at its broadest point. National territorial waters, according to the U.S. position, extend only three miles from the shoreline.

One important portion of the waterway does come under Egypt's territorial jurisdiction. This is the Strait of Tiran, which must be used by ships entering the gulf. This strait is about four miles wide at the narrowest point.

State Department lawyers say the landmark international law decision covering the Gulf of Aqaba situation was the 1949 Corfu case. The Strait of Corfu is a passageway in Albanian territorial waters which connects two parts of the high seas of the Adriatic.

Albania tried to close the Corfu strait and mined it. Two British cruisers hit the Albanian mines.

The case went to the World Court, which ruled against Albania and in favor of the right of free passage through the strait.

The 1958 Geneva convention on law of the seas reaffirmed this principle. One article of this convention says: "There shall be no suspension of the innocent passage of foreign ships through straits which are used for international navigation between one part of the high seas and another part of the high seas or the territorial sea of a foreign state."

Another provision of the convention says: "Passage is innocent so long as it is not prejudicial to the peace, good order or security of the coastal state."

both sides but would freeze the situation as it is today—with the Egyptian ban on Israeli shipping in the gulf still in effect.

Diplomatic sources familiar with U.S. thinking said this would not be acceptable to the United States.

The simmering crisis exploded into headlines late last month when Egypt demanded withdrawal of the U.N. Emergency Force from its territory along the Israeli border where it had acted as a buffer for more than 10 years.

Secretary-General U Thant struck back Friday night at critics who complained of his haste in acceding to the Egyptian demand.

Speaking at a dinner of the U.N. Association of Canada in Montreal, Thant declared that U.N. peacekeeping "does not, and cannot, rely on military force or threats, on power politics or on physical domination.

"It is a voluntary operation, and any suggestion that it should, for whatever reasons, cease to be so could be fatal to the whole idea."

Thant said he could not share the view that "the present crisis, desperately serious though it is, is a great defeat for the concept of peacekeeping. On the contrary, we now see all too clearly the true value and importance of the idea.

"But we also have had a grim reminder of the difficulties still to be overcome and of the essential limitations of the United Nations in a world still dominated by rigid concepts of national sovereignty, by power politics, and by acute nationalistic feelings."

defense secretary, characterized the move as sharpening "the fighting edge" of the Reserve forces, there were clear signs Congress may intervene before the scheduled changeover late this summer.

Vance noted that while the reorganization plan itself requires no congressional action, personnel because they are a vital part of our war plans."

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-.C., a retired Army major general and a member of the Armed Services Committee, termed it "asinine to consider reducing the strength and thereby the fighting capabilities of either the Reserves or the National Guard" when new crises are arriving daily.

He called for a searching inquiry into the Pentagon plan.

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., another member of the Armed Services Committee, said he supports Stennis' position on the Reserve reorganization. Aides said Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., another committee member, had protested the move as similar to earlier realignments at which Congress had balked.

Aides said Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., has asked the Armed Services Committee to consider carefully whether deactivation of New York's 27th Armored Divison would serve a useful purpose. He cited the claim of Brig. Gen. Collin P. Williams, its commander, that the outfit is in a high state of training and has a good record in emergencies.

Another aspect of the plan seen by some as creating friction between partisans of either the Guard or Reserve is the placing of all combat and combat-support elements — such as infantry, armored and artillery — under the Guard. The Reserve will contain only service-type units, such as supply, medical and engineer.

But in Indianapolis, Ind., where they were attending a conference, the top generals of the Guard and Reserve moved to put the lid on speculation about such friction.

"There's no downgrading of either one," said Maj. Gen. Winston P. Wilson, chief of the National Guard Bureau. "Support organizations are just as important as combat groups, because without support you can't use combat units."

Real Estate Taxes Due To Be Avoided

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes' administration plans to open local tax sources other than real estate to meet the growing needs of cities and counties, according to state Finance Director Richard L. Krabach.

"We will have additional money for education but we will not overlook the need of helping local goverments solve their problems without turning to the property tax," Krabach said.

The state Tax Study Commission plans to complete next week its report on possible new revenue sources. Reportedly among the proposals are a state income tax and a sales tax increase.

Statehouse spokesmen say the governor might go along with increased taxes to meet education needs -- but not for anything else.

Krabach said the administration's tax program will stress permissive local taxes.

"Subsidies are not the best way because they often cost the cities more money than they receive back from the state," he said. "Our plan is to open local tax sources other than real estate so they can meet their needs."

He did not say specifically what taxes the administration would support.

hitting Communist positions at Tam Ky under cover of air strikes and artillery. Early reports had 117 North Vietnamese killed, but there was no immediate word on Marine casualties.

The action continues Operation Union 2, which began May 26 with a general assault by 3,000 U.S. Marines and South Vietnamese troops on the 3rd North Vietnamese Regiment and the 21st Viet Cong Regiment. Both enemy units had been operating in the sector for some time.

South Vietnamese troops declared a victory Friday over the Viet Cong's 808th Mobile Battalion in an engagement south of the demilitarized zone.

A spokesman said 150 of the 500-man crack Viet Cong detachment were slain in an assault by South Vietnamese paratroopers, infantry and armor. The action was braced by air strikes and artillery.

Government casualties were not announced.

The engagement took place less than five miles east of the U.S. Marine base camp at Dong Ha 12 miles below the demilitarized zone. The spot is the southeastern corner of a sector bounded by four Marine posts and known as Leatherneck Square.

The U.S. Command disclosed that a record 38 U.S. planes went down over North Vietnam in May. In all, 2,286 planes and helicopters have been destroyed by hostile action and other causes in five years of U.S. action in the war.

Davis Given Release By Lisbon Court

LISBON — Sanford A. Davis, 46, whose conviction on a charge of armed robbery was reversed April 19 by the Ohio Supreme Court, was released on his own recognizance Friday by Judge Joel H. Sharp in Common Pleas Court.

Davis was returned Thursday from Ohio State Penitentiary where he served two years of a 10-to-25-years sentence. He gave his address as Smiths Ferry R.D. 1.

A jury convicted him May 15, 1964, of taking $200 at gunpoint from Miss Ida and Miss Leoma Ward eight months before at the sisters' farm home near Negley.

The Supreme Court sustained Davis' appeal and returned the case for a new trial because the prosecution commented to the jury on his failure to testify at a preliminary hearing.

Davis' brother, James Davis, indicted on the same charge, was tried later and acquitted.

The recognizance signed yesterday by Davis is in the amount of $2,500 which the accused acknowledges himself to owe the state if he fails to appear at, during and after trial until final order of the court.

During Oak Glen Event

Reigns At Prom

Miss Nancy Gibson was crowned queen by Richard Gogol, junior class president, during the annual Oak Glen High School junior - senior prom Friday night at the school.

Gogol is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Gogol of 313 Grant St., Newell.

Attendants in the queen's court included: Bobbi Lou Boyles, daughter of Mrs. William D. Bailey and Lonnie Boyles, of Route 2, Chester; Sharon Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Shirld Williams, 2nd Ave., New Cumberland; Sally Stover, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harl Stover, Pughtown; Sharon Wylie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wylie, California Ave., Chester; Connie Kirchner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Kirchner, 1st St., Newell, and Amy Cooper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Cooper, New Cumberland. The six attendants are all members of the junior class.

defense secretary, characterized the move as sharpening "the fighting edge" of the Reserve forces, there were clear signs Congress may intervene before the scheduled changeover late this summer.

Vance noted that while the reorganization plan itself requires no congressional action, personnel because they are a vital part of our war plans."

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-C., a retired Army major general and a member of the Armed Services Committee, termed it "asinine to consider reducing the strength and thereby the fighting capabilities of either the Reserves or the National Guard" when new crises are arriving daily.

He called for a searching inquiry into the Pentagon plan.

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., another member of the Armed Services Committee, said he supports Stennis' position on the Reserve reorganization. Aides said Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., another committee member, had protested the move as similar to earlier realignments at which Congress had balked.

Aides said Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., has asked the Armed Services Committee to consider carefully whether deactivation of New York's 27th Armored Divison would serve a useful purpose. He cited the claim of Brig. Gen. Collin P. Williams, its commander, that the outfit is in a high state of training and has a good record in emergencies.

Another aspect of the plan seen by some as creating friction between partisans of either the Guard or Reserve is the placing of all combat and combat-support elements — such as infantry, armored and artillery — under the Guard. The Reserve will contain only service-type units, such as supply, medical and engineer.

But in Indianapolis, Ind., where they were attending a conference, the top generals of the Guard and Reserve moved to put the lid on speculation about such friction.

"There's no downgrading of either one," said Maj. Gen. Winston P. Wilson, chief of the National Guard Bureau. "Support organizations are just as important as combat groups, because without support you can't use combat units."

New bills introduced in the two chambers would permit the Public Utilities Commission to initiate investigations of motor transportation rates, allow county auditors by contract to collect city income taxes, increase workmen's compensation payments, and clarify exemptions from a ban against parking on freeways.

Real Estate Taxes Due To Be Avoided

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes' administration plans to open local tax sources other than real estate to meet the growing needs of cities and counties, according to state Finance Director Richard L. Krabach.

"We will have additional money for education but we will not overlook the need of helping local goverments solve their problems without turning to the property tax," Krabach said.

The state Tax Study Commission plans to complete next week its report on possible new revenue sources. Reportedly among the proposals are a state income tax and a sales tax increase.

Statehouse spokesmen say the governor might go along with increased taxes to meet education needs -- but not for anything else.

Krabach said the administration's tax program will stress permissive local taxes.

"Subsidies are not the best way because they often cost the cities more money than they receive back from the state," he said. "Our plan is to open local tax sources other than real estate so they can meet their needs."

He did not say specifically what taxes the administration would support.

The action continues Operation Union 2, which began May 26 with a general assault by 3,000 U.S. Marines and South Vietnamese troops on the 3rd North Vietnamese Regiment and the 21st Viet Cong Regiment. Both enemy units had been operating in the sector for some time.

South Vietnamese troops declared a victory Friday over the Viet Cong's 808th Mobile Battalion in an engagement south of the demilitarized zone.

A spokesman said 150 of the 500-man crack Viet Cong detachment were slain in an assault by South Vietnamese paratroopers, infantry and armor. The action was braced by air strikes and artillery.

Government casualties were not announced.

The engagement took place less than five miles east of the U.S. Marine base camp at Dong Ha 12 miles below the demilitarized zone. The spot is the southeastern corner of a sector bounded by four Marine posts and known as Leatherneck Square.

The U.S. Command disclosed that a record 38 U.S. planes went down over North Vietnam in May. In all, 2,286 planes and helicopters have been destroyed by hostile action and other causes in five years of U.S. action in the war.

Davis Given Release By Lisbon Court

LISBON — Sanford A. Davis, 46, whose conviction on a charge of armed robbery was reversed April 19 by the Ohio Supreme Court, was released on his own recognizance Friday by Judge Joel H. Sharp in Common Pleas Court.

Davis was returned Thursday from Ohio State Penitentiary where he served two years of a 10-to-25-years sentence. He gave his address as Smiths Ferry R.D. 1.

A jury convicted him May 15, 1964, of taking $200 at gunpoint from Miss Ida and Miss Leoma Ward eight months before at the sisters' farm home near Negley.

The Supreme Court sustained Davis' appeal and returned the case for a new trial because the prosecution commented to the jury on his failure to testify at a preliminary hearing.

Davis' brother, James Davis, indicted on the same charge, was tried later and acquitted.

The recognizance signed yesterday by Davis is in the amount of $2,500 which the accused acknowledges himself to owe the state if he fails to appear at, during and after trial until final order of the court.

School Held At Midland

'Anti-Riot' Instructions Offered

The school was jointly sponsored by the Midland police and fire departments. Representatives of Midland, Vanport, Ohioview, Industry and East Liverpool police and fire departments attended.

The agent explained the three types of riot formations —wedge, line and echelon. Training films were shown and the men were told that the psychological "show" of force is often effective enough to quell a mob without violence.

Mobs grow unruly because they have a common interest, a stimulus and because of the individual's loss of identity and feeling he will be immune from prosecution.

Treher and Reynolds, both long-time FBI veterans, said the use of trained fire department workers was recommended. Squads were formed and drilled from the 65 who attended.

Representing the East Liverpool police department were Patrolmen William A. Devon and K. J. Montgomery.

Meetng Eyed On Proposals By Teachers

A meeting is being arranged between the East Liverpool Board of Education and the East Liverpool Teachers Association for negotiations on six items.

The teachers plan to ask the board to adopt a minimum salary schedule established by the Ohio Education Association and delete a section from teaching contracts along with consideration of other proposals.

The items listed were endorsed by 93 per cent of the ELTA members at a special meeting last week.

John Murphy of Kent, Northeast District field representative for OEA, spoke of the membership. Clint McConnell, president, presided.

According to a recent agreement signed between the teachers and the board, items to be considered for negotiation must be presented in writing and a date for a meeting agreed on between the two parties.

The items to be presented for negotiation follow:

1.—That the Board of Education immediately adopt the OEA recommended minimum salary schedule in its entirety, contingent upon increased foundation program funds allocated for this purpose. That any additional funds available for salary improvements beyond the OEA minimum salary schedule be renegotiated.

2.—That the following in paragraph one (1) be deleted from the teaching contracts: ". . . and perform such other duties as may be assigned by the administrative officials without additional compensation."

3.—That the Board of Education grant permission for early dismissal of classes for time to hold four regular meetings of the East Liverpool Teachers Association during the year.

4.—That the Board of Education adopt the State Board of Education's recommendation that a maximum of 30 students be assigned to each classroom.

5.—That teachers who, because of a lack of suitable substitutes, are requested to give up their preparation periods by the administration to take over the supervision of classes because of the absence of the regular teacher, be remunerated at the rate of one-sixth of their daily salary for such assignment.

6.—That the Board of Education grant elementary and junior high teachers a daily preparation period, and that this period not be added to the length of the regular school day.

Officers said he was overtaking and passing her car and drove to the right into the side of her vehicle, causing minor damage.

Judith C. Bookman, 26, of East Liverpool R. D. 2 was cited last night after her 1967 auto hit the rear of another car on Route 170, about a mile north of Route 30 at 8:15 p. m.

Officers said Howard R. Diddle, 58, of Wellsville R.D. 1 had halted behind other vehicles whose drivers had stopped for traffic and his 1964 auto was hit from behind by her car.

Crews Drag For Body Of Beaver Youth

BEAVER FALLS — Firemen began dragging operations this morning in the Beaver River in an effort to recover the body of 15-year-old William Roy who apparently drowned Friday while swimming near the Eastvale Dam.

Roy, son of Mrs. Shirley Roy of 421 16th St., a sophomore at Beaver Falls High School, was with a group of six youths who were swimming on the Eastvale side of the river, absent from shool classes.

Companions said Roy dove off the lower part of the dam and began swimming toward the pump house of the Beaver Falls Water Department and was heard to shout he couldn't make it. He disappeared below the water surface, and friends swimming to the site were unable to locate him.

Efforts by firemen and scuba divers to find him later in the day were unsuccessful.

Capt. Mooney Speaks

Origin Of Fingerprinting Traced At Lions Meeting

The history of fingerprinting, from the earliest experiments by the Chinese to modern - day methods, was traced by Capt. Kenneth Mooney of the Police Department when he spoke at the noon meeting of the Lions Club Friday.

Jack Conley was program chairman.

Mooney recently completed a course in fingerprinting at the Bureau of Criminal Identification, London, Ohio. He attended three weeks of classes May 6 through 26.

The first fingerprints were taken about 650 A.D. by Ky Yung Yen, who wrote a thesis concerning their use for identification purposes.

In 1858, Sir William Herschel continued experimentations and noted the various patterns of an individual's prints, Mooney said.

Today's present "Henry" system was developed from that of Sir Henry Galton, who worked out a classification system for prints in 1902, he added.

Fingerprinting was first used in the United States at Leavenworth, Kan. The first conviction with their use in Ohio came in 1919 at Circleville.

In 1921, BCI was created and began compiling fingerprint records. Soon afterward the FBI consolidated all records of prints.

Mooney showed members some typical fingerprint card forms and explained how latent prints, those taken at the scene of a crime, are lifted.

He noted it is often impossible, to obtain prints when an incident takes place, because of the many persons involved.

Youth Convicted For Fire Deaths

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) —A teen-ager has been convicted of both murder and arson in the deaths of nine children and three adults in a fire that destroyed the Yonkers Jewish Community Center.

Thomas Ruppert, 18, showed no emotion as a jury of 10 men and two women convicted him Friday on 24 counts of first-degree murder and one of arson. The panel deliberated 24 hours.

Westchester County Court Judge Robert Dempsey, who presided at the three-week trial, set sentencing for next Friday.

Defense attorney Eleanor Jackson Piel said she would file an appeal.

Ruppert, who had been a part-time janitor at the center, was arrested almost a month after the Dec. 20, 1965 fire.

Ruppert disappeared after the blaze and was found in Grasslands Hospital, in nearby valhalla, undergoing court-ordered psychiatric treatment involving a charge brought against him before he was 16.

Ruppert was accused during the trial of spreading the contents of a five-gallon can of gasoline in the center and igniting it. Police refused to make the motive public.

Ruppert had been living with his father, Robert, a truck driver, and seven brothers and sisters. His mother is hospitalized with cancer.

Main St. has asked that his license, allowing for the sale of beer, wine or liquor by the glass until 2:30 a.m., be transferred to Albert Brammer and Pearl Kellogg, also listed as proprietors of the lounge.

Ex-Candidate Wounded By Bandit's Gun

ROCHESTER — Samuel Piccinini of Harmony Ave., head of a construction and hauling firm and onetime Beaver County commissioner candidate, was in "fair" condition today at a Pittsburgh hospital with a gunshot wound of the mouth.

Piccinini, who was an unsuccessful candidate in the May Democrat primary, told police he was shot while grappling with a would-be robber in front of his home early this morning.

Police Chief John Gebauer said the victim reported he was encountered by the gunman about 2:30 a.m. when he parked his car at home and got out.

The man, Piccinini said, was holding the gun and told him to give him his money. Piccinini said he grabbed the man, they struggled and the gun fired. The gunman then ran off.

Piccinini was treated at Rochester General Hospital, then transferred to Mercy Hospital, Pittsburgh.

Man's Car Hits Wife's In Crash South Of Rogers

A collision between cars driven by a Rogers husband and wife on Route 7 Friday night resulted in only slight damage to the two vehicles, the Highway Patrol at Lisbon reported.

A 1967 coach driven by Marty Ellen Artrip, 46, of Rogers and a 1960 sedan operated by Jack Artrip, 45, of Rogers collided about a mile south of Rogers at 9:30 p. m.

Officers said he was overtaking and passing her car and drove to the right into the side of her vehicle, causing minor damage.

Judith C. Bookman, 26, of East Liverpool R. D. 2 was cited last night after her 1967 auto hit the rear of another car on Route 170, about a mile north of Route 30 at 8:15 p. m.

Officers said Howard R. Diddle, 58, of Wellsville R.D. 1 had halted behind other vehicles whose drivers had stopped for traffic and his 1964 auto was hit from behind by her car.

She was charged with failure to stop in the assured clear distance.

Crews Drag For Body Of Beaver Youth

BEAVER FALLS — Firemen began dragging operations this morning in the Beaver River in an effort to recover the body of 15-year-old William Roy who apparently drowned Friday while swimming near the Eastvale Dam.

Roy, son of Mrs. Shirley Roy of 421 16th St., a sophomore at Beaver Falls High School, was with a group of six youths who were swimming on the Eastvale side of the river, absent from shool classes.

Companions said Roy dove off the lower part of the dam and began swimming toward the pump house of the Beaver Falls Water Department and was heard to shout he couldn't make it. He disappeared below the water surface, and friends swimming to the site were unable to locate him.

Efforts by firemen and scuba divers to find him later in the day were unsuccessful.

Capt. Mooney Speaks

Origin Of Fingerprinting Traced At Lions Meeting

The history of fingerprinting, from the earliest experiments by the Chinese to modern - day methods, was traced by Capt. Kenneth Mooney of the Police Department when he spoke at the noon meeting of the Lions Club Friday.

Jack Conley was program chairman.

Mooney recently completed a course in fingerprinting at the Bureau of Criminal Identification, London, Ohio. He attended three weeks of classes May 6 through 26.

The first fingerprints were taken about 650 A.D. by Ky Yung Yen, who wrote a thesis concerning their use for identification purposes.

In 1858, Sir William Herschel continued experimentations and noted the various patterns of an individual's prints, Mooney said.

Today's present "Henry" system was developed from that of Sir Henry Galton, who worked out a classification system for prints in 1902, he added.

Fingerprinting was first used in the United States at Leavenworth, Kan. The first conviction with their use in Ohio came in 1919 at Circleville.

In 1921, BCI was created and began compiling fingerprint records. Soon afterward the FBI consolidated all records of prints.

Mooney showed members some typical fingerprint card forms and explained how latent prints, those taken at the scene of a crime, are lifted.

He noted it is often impossible, to obtain prints when an incident takes place, because of the many persons involved.

Ex-Candidate Wounded By Bandit's Gun

ROCHESTER — Samuel Piccinini of Harmony Ave., head of a construction and hauling firm and onetime Beaver County commissioner candidate, was in "fair" condition today at a Pittsburgh hospital with a gunshot wound of the mouth.

Piccinini, who was an unsuccessful candidate in the May Democrat primary, told police he was shot while grappling with a would-be robber in front of his home early this morning.

Police Chief John Gebauer said the victim reported he was encountered by the gunman about 2:30 a.m. when he parked his car at home and got out.

The man, Piccinini said, was holding the gun and told him to give him his money. Piccinini said he grabbed the man, they struggled and the gun fired. The gunman then ran off.

Piccinini was treated at Rochester General Hospital, then transferred to Mercy Hospital, Pittsburgh.

Drifting Auto Strikes Another At Wellsville

Damage was minor to an auto owned by George F. Groubert, 45, of East Liverpool R. D. 3 when it was struck Friday by a driverless car in the Sterling China Co. parking lot at Wellsville.

An auto owned by James Saracco of 609 Buckeye Ave. was being repaired at the Thomas Gualtier garage, 1118 Commerce St., when it rolled across the street into the other car.

Youth Convicted For Fire Deaths

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) —A teen-ager has been convicted of both murder and arson in the deaths of nine children and three adults in a fire that destroyed the Yonkers Jewish Community Center.

Thomas Ruppert, 18, showed no emotion as a jury of 10 men and two women convicted him Friday on 24 counts of first-degree murder and one of arson. The panel deliberated 24 hours.

Westchester County Court Judge Robert Dempsey, who presided at the three-week trial, set sentencing for next Friday.

Defense attorney Eleanor Jackson Piel said she would file an appeal.

Ruppert, who had been a part-time janitor at the center, was arrested almost a month after the Dec. 20, 1965 fire.

Ruppert disappeared after the blaze and was found in Grasslands Hospital, in nearby valhalla, undergoing court-ordered psychiatric treatment involving a charge brought against him before he was 16.

Ruppert was accused during the trial of spreading the contents of a five-gallon can of gasoline in the center and igniting it. Police refused to make the motive public.

Ohio Should Tackle Real Tax Reform

Taxation is the subject of sensitive discussion these days at all levels of government.

The cost of meeting escalating payrolls and providing an ever-widening range of services has public officials scurrying for new sources of revenue.

Where and how to take the next bite out of the taxpayer are problems the solution to which has legislative authorities in a state of nervous frustration.

Most people, we believe, appreciate the plight of money-starved state, county, municipal and school district agencies. But very few show any inclination to do anything about it.

Failure of such a large percentage of tax issues placed before the voters is an indication of the mood of those who must pay the tab.

And in the past, we have seen ample evidence of what can happen to executives and legislators who have the temerity to suggest or approve next taxes. They may be cast into political oblivion.

But the need is there, and anyone burdened with the cost of running a household will attest to it if he permits himself a moment of honesty.

THE TAXPAYER has no direct voice in the enactment of federal or state taxes. The Congress and the General Assembly give their assent and—bingo—you pay.

The federal income tax digs deeply but the average taxpayer just shrugs his shoulders in a display of what-can-I-do-about-it indifference, rolls over like a submissive puppy and surrenders to the inevitable.

The complex of state taxes is disturbing only if the legislator tries to up the ante, and then he is more often than not sent home to contemplate his sins of audacity.

At the local level, the taxpayer has the right to declare his independence from any influence brought to bear on him by those promoting the passage of levies or bond issues.

He suddenly turns tiger and claws and snarls at anyone with the gall to reach for his pockets book. He not only is tax-conscious. He is tax-punchy.

This has been the nub of the tax problem.

The state, which holds sway over the form and method of enactment of all local taxes, must now face up to urgency of a situation that no one likes but from which there is no escape.

THE OHIO TAX Study Commission has completed its study and is about ready to announce its findings. Word has already leaked out that there will be no recommendations for new or increased taxes. The commission's report is expected to deal only with those areas from which new or expanded sources of revenue could be forthcoming.

We suspect the study group will range far and wide in its exploration, but it is doubtful that anything it has to say will be measurably helpful to local subdivisions. The state may get some tips on how to close the tax gap with which it is currently confronted, but pee-emption makes this relatively easy.

What the cities, the counties, the townships and the school boards will want to know is how to make the principle of local taxation work, short of forcing proponents to stage a three-ring circus of promotional gymnastics every time an issue is placed before the the voters.

It appears to us that a little trail-blazing in the whole concept of taxation is in order. The day when real estate stood alone on the tax firing line will, in our judgment, become a fast-fading memory.

Property will not escape its just share of the burden, as it certainly should not, but fairness dictates that it cannot continue to carry the load that has been placed upon it by every local subdivision of government that has tax-generating authority.

IT SEEMS TO US the problem of taxation could be made much simpler if subdivisions were channeled into more clearly defined fields.

For example, real estate would appear to be the proper area for schools. Property values in a school district have a certain sensitivity to the quality of education available there.

Income taxes strike us as being the most logical source of revenue for cities and villages. Many, including all the larger cities in Ohio, already have enacted such a tax and many more should move in that direction to lighten the burden on real estate.

To keep counties and townships out of the area of real estate taxation, where even now it has not been very welcome beyond the 10-mill limitation, we recommend the revolutionary idea of a special form of taxation that could be enacted by the county commissioners through authority granted by the State Legislature.

We are not prepared to recommend what form this tax whould take, but it should be in an area not already pre-empted by the state. This is a matter for exploration and it had better be done quickly, because many of the larger counties and virtually all the townships with which the tax would be shared are hurting badly for sufficient finances to build and repair roads and do all the other things requided by sprawling suburban growth.

IT WOULD NOT BE feasible now, perhaps never, to deprive townships, counties, villages and cities of the real estate taxes thev now receive within the 10-mill limitation. Under the rearrangement of taxing channels, nothing in the future would be sought from real estate unless it were a long-range, capital investment program which would require bond-issued financing.

We vision the state staying pretty strictly in the taxing areas where it already operates and, in recognition of the new emphasis on local taxation, not entertaining any new and extravagant ideas to expand revenues to help local subdivisions do things they can better do for themselves.

Unless someone (regretfully it probably will not be the tax study commission) brings order out of chaos, there will be more wire-crossing and more confusion than ever in Ohio taxing procedures. A bill already has been introduced to project school boards into the income tax field. Others just as incongruous will come along to throw the whole tax structure into an even more hopeless mess than it already finds itself.

In summary, we propose these forms of taxation for local subdivisions:

CITIES and VILLAGES—Income tax. City councils aldeady have authority to enact such a tax up to one per cent without a vote of the people. We believe the Ohio Assembly should extend that authority to one and a half per cent.

SCHOOL DISTRICTS. Real estate. Each district should be required to commit itself to a millage minimum for operating funds and capital improvement before it can qualify for state aid. The state would have to contribute liberally to elementary and secondary education to compensate for imbalances in property valuation and to guarantee quality beyond the capacity of real estate to assure it.

COUNTIES and TOWNSHIPS. A new form of special taxation by the legislature and would be applicable upon action by the commissioners. Townships would share in this tax in some equitable percentage, where now they exist on subsistence budgets completely inadequate to meet basic needs.

TAXATION in any form is a nasty word to most taxpayers.

Taxation, with or without representation, is the bane of all politicians in a popular government.

It cannot be made palatable. It could be made tolerable with less complexity and more simplicity in the distribution of the burden.

What is needed is the courage to tackle tax reform.

What is indispensable is to see the need for tax change.

They Would Get The Message

We wish every Ohio lawmaker and law enforcer would take to heart a statement by Rep. Gordon M. Scherer, R-Hamilton, on the omnibus highway safety bill he is co-sponsoring in the General Assembly.

"We no longer can afford to be a nation of bleeding hearts where the dangerous driver is concerned," said Rep. Scherer.

The state's chronic drunks, speeders, scofflaws and highway cutups have been counting on soft-hearted judges and in some instances soft-headed legislators to get them out of their self-inflicted troubles.

They have been weaving their way through traffic happy in the knowledge they will be given the benefit of every doubt and the protection of every legal dodge if they maim or kill someone.

They have rested secure in a king-bird seat behind the steering wheel, figuring that the worst thing they can be given is a fine and a jail term even though they may have sent someone to the morgue.

Rep. Scherer says it is going to take more than slogans and good intentions to stop highway slaughterers.

He could have gone the rest of the way and identified the slaughterers.

Their identity is no mystery.

Most serious accidents are caused by autoists operating on a thin margin of safety. They have been in accidents before. They go looking for an accident every time they get back of the wheel.

They are at the opposite end of the scale from where safe drivers are found — where drivers go out of their way to avoid trouble and pile up long-running accident-free records that underlie all highway safety.

If traffic laws were not made and administered by bleeding hearts, there would be less bleeding and dying on highways. Chronic maimers and killers would get the message in a hurry.

If they could expect no more mercy than they had shown by their own bad behavior, they would see the light. It would be the Golden Rule in reverse — Do unto them as they will keep doing to us if they aren't stopped.

Flower-Pickin' Shame

Please don't pick the daisies — or the flowers and plants anywhere in the district's woods or fields.

Some species are in danger of extinction as a result of the growth of urban areas, strip-mining and the practice of flower picking.

Harry Stewart, Review outdoors editor, points out picking of flowers is illegal on state property, and a poor practice anywhere if prevention of seeding jeopardizes new growth.

Leave the blooms for the next person, and for the next generation of plants to help keep the natural beauty we are fortunate to enjoy in our area hills and valleys.

Odd Facts

Any auditorium or hall has good acoustics for speech and music if it is properly shaped to reflect useful sound to listeners — without disturbing echoes. A "useful" reflection is one that arrives at the listener's ear within 1-20 of a second after the sound is emitted by the speaker or musical instrument. If the reflection is delayed longer, it becomes a disturbing echo.

Because of American free-enterprise advances in agricultural science and farm machinery, the United States today grows about twice as much food on about the same acreage as 50 years ago.

Meany Names Heir Apparent

By Victor Riesel

WASHINGTON — Easy lies the head that wears the crown inside labor today. It rests squarely, albeit sometimes jauntily, upon the robust 72-year-old George Meany, who scoffs at retiring—but the word within the sanctum is that he appears to have named a very apparent heir.

Victor Riesel

The new crown prince will wince at the description for his is a rugged whirl-windish sailor who always is where the action is, or rather it is where he is since he is Paul Hall, president of the Searfarers International Union.

If insiders are right, this will send rumbles across country soon and shake up many a community. And the evidence of the succession—though not very impending—seems to be there, all right.

It came about quite simply. Walter Reuther abdicated virtually all his titles not too long ago, including his 11-year-old chairmanship of the AFL-CIO's Standing Committee on Organization. This was the sign that he had forever abandoned hopes for leadership of the 14 million-member movement—the free world's largest.

The other day there came to the desk of Paul Hall a short letter from Meany naming the seafarer as Reuther's successor to this crucial post.

Why crucial?

It was created to be the second spot in labor's hierarchy—and by none other than the movement's special counsel at the time, Arthur J. Goldberg. There was much maneuvering back in 1955 when the AFL and CIO chieftains were jousting for position while merging their two massive organizations.

THERE NEVER WAS any doubt that Meany would be president. But Reuther, even then not his most ardent admirer, wanted guarantees that he would some day succeed the "plumber." Goldberg, always the peacemaker and molder of compromises, devised the Committee on Organization. This would be the power seat. From this position Reuther could launch drives, stay in the public spotlight, crisscross the nation and deliver mass appeals to the masses.

This was fine with Meany. To show his good faith he not only agreed to Reuther, the former head of the CIO, controlling the strategic Committee on Organization, but also turned over most of the key departments to former CIO aides of Reuther.

Furthermore, Meany called in brother Victor Reuther and offered to appoint him special assistant to the AFL-CIO president. This would have put a Reuther right inside the sanctum. Victor Reuther rejected this and went to work for his brother as head of the Auto Union's own state department.

Still Meany did not pass over any chance to move the Reuthers and their colleagues closer to the central organization. The AFL-CIO president then named an auto union leader, Jack Livingston, Director of Organization—in a sense a subsidiary of the committee. When Livingston resigned, Meany replaced him with another auto union man, Bill Kirsche.

It positively was Meany's intention to sign sometime along 1963 or '65. But Reuther cut loose on him and Meany never quite under tongue lash or firebrands. So he stayed. And he loves it.

NOW PAUL HALL is in Reuther's old juggernaut. The sailor, who burns daylight and sometimes flies 10 to 15 thousand miles a week, plans to unionize the ununionized.

"Target Organization," he calls it.

"Remember when the CIO had operation Dixie?" he asked an inquiring friend the other day. 'It could not succeed. It was too broad. It dissipated labor's strength.

"But, let us zoom in on a taget and whittle down the size of the battlefield but not the size of our army or war chest."

Though he has flayed the auto union leader at the drop of a Reutherian dialectic, Hall praised him for developing concentration tactics—especially in the Los Angeles area. There, says Hall, in one of the toughest areas in which labor can attempt to unionize, target concentration has succeeded.

SOME YEARS AGO the region was selected by the national organization committee for concentration. All unions in the Los Angeles and Orange Counties were set up in divisions. Then they created a "Combined Divisions" system. They unionized anybody who would join in any sort of plant or shop. Then the workers were sifted into their proper unions.

Last Feb. 20 the Combined Divisions representatives met in the Rodger Young auditorium. They heard that they had unionized 94,930 in all in the counties.

Now Hall will try to emulate this in other target areas. To use his own word, there will be many a rumble throughout the land.

Thus easy lies the head that wears the crown inside labor today. He has a stalwart by his side.

The wild ox of Asia, known as the Yak, inhabits the cold, dry plateaus of Tibet, often more than 16,000 feet above sea level. The wild yak stands more than six feet high at the shoulders, and weighs between 1,100 and 1,200 pounds. It is an agile creature, despite its bulk, and can slide down icy mountainsides, swim the swiftest rivers, and race across steep rock slides.

One of the biggest of the giant sequoia trees is the General Sherman Tree, in Sequoia National Park, California. It is 272.4 feet high and the base of its trunk is 32.7 feet in diameter. It has been estimated that this tree alone would yield more than 600,000 board feet of lumber.

Lake Baikal, in Siberia, is the largest freshwater lake in northern Asia and also the deepest lake in the world — about 5,000 feet deep.

"Speaking of the 'credibility gap'—what's your handicap?"

Tight-Lipped

By James Marlow

LBJ Silent On Middle East

WASHINGTON

Silence is like a headache: You never hear it happen and only realize it's there gradually.

President Johnson has been almost totally silent on the Middle East crisis. If that seems strange, it shouldn't. It is only the latest example of the tight-lipped policy he has been following for months.

In this particular case it may have been necessary for Johnson and his whole administration to clam up while they try to work out a solution behind the scenes.

If he said anything supporting Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser, it might take the starch out of the Israelis. If he flatly backed Israel, it might render Nasser so self-conscious, with the Arab world watching, that he would feel compelled to take drastic action in defiance.

And one good reason for Johnson's not making any threats is the fact that he has to worry about the unpredictable Soviets, since he can't be sure what their interests are in this crisis or even whether they stirred up the whole thing.

BUT THIS IS quite a different Johnson from the one who kept dashing before the television cameras, almost panting with pronouncements, at the start of the Dominican Republic crisis in 1965.

If there's any explanation for the difference between the Johnson of 1965 and the Johnson of today it lies in some undisclosed decision to make a complete switch in tactics.

This seems a realistic conclusion because the switch has been so obvious.

In the Dominican case, perhaps Johnson's worst public relations performance, he was criticized on two counts: for intervening at all, although he said it was to prevent a Communist takeover; and for those repeated, excited - looking appearances on television.

If he had to do it over again Johnson no doubt would use the troops because he was convinced of the Communist danger. But he probably would limit his public appearances.

The bad reaction he got at the time apparently didn't dent his eagerness to talk and explain to the American public. But after that his popularity in the opinion polls gradually went down.

He must have decided on a severe change in the fall of 1966 when he took practically no part in the election campaigns. After the elections, bad for the Democrats, he withdrew into almost total silence.

The first glimpse of the new Johnson came in his news conference last Dec. 31. Instead of bubbling, as in the past, he limited himself to yes or no or matter-of-fact answers, a method he hadn't tried before.

HE HAS followed that system ever since although he has had a lot to say about the war in Vietnam. But what has he said about the war. Nothing flamboyant, that's for sure, and not much besides repeating that this country is always ready to talk peace if the North Vietnamese are.

Oddly enough, Johnson's restraint about the war, his lack of threats, has probably made the North Vietnamese feel he is far tougher than they had imagined earlier.

And for this reason: While he continues to express goodwill — at least to the extent of saying he wants peace — he intensified the war.

Johnson's present - day silence about his plans and much of his thinking is probably more truly a part of his nature than his bouncy talkativeness ever was. One has only to look back a few years to see why.

He wasn't a very talkative Democratic Senate majority leader from 1955 until he became vice president in 1961. But for getting things done he was outstanding, probably the best Senate leader in history.

He got his work done by conference, compromises, the armtwisting. He played the cards close to his chest.

For example, real estate would appear to be the proper area for schools. Property values in a school district have a certain sensitivity to the quality of education available there.

Income taxes strike us as being the most logical source of revenue for cities and villages. Many, including all the larger cities in Ohio, already have enacted such a tax and many more should move in that direction to lighten the burden on real estate.

To keep counties and townships out of the area of real estate taxation, where even now it has not been very welcome beyond the 10-mill limitation, we recommend the revolutionary idea of a special form of taxation that could be enacted by the county commissioners through authority granted by the State Legislature.

We are not prepared to recommend what form this tax whould take, but it should be in an area not already pre-empted by the state. This is a matter for exploration and it had better be done quickly, because many of the larger counties and virtually all the townships with which the tax would be shared are hurting badly for sufficient finances to build and repair roads and do all the other things requided by sprawling suburban growth.

IT WOULD NOT BE feasible now, perhaps never, to deprive townships, counties, villages and cities of the real estate taxes thev now receive within the 10-mill limitation. Under the rearrangement of taxing channels, nothing in the future would be sought from real estate unless it were a long-range, capital investment program which would require bond-issued financing.

We vision the state staying pretty strictly in the taxing areas where it already operates and, in recognition of the new emphasis on local taxation, not entertaining any new and extravagant ideas to expand revenues to help local subdivisions do things they can better do for themselves.

Unless someone (regretfully it probably will not be the tax study commission) brings order out of chaos, there will be more wire-crossing and more confusion than ever in Ohio taxing procedures. A bill already has been introduced to project school boards into the income tax field. Others just as incongruous will come along to throw the whole tax structure into an even more hopeless mess than it already finds itself.

In summary, we propose these forms of taxation for local subdivisions:

CITIES and VILLAGES—Income tax. City councils aldeady have authority to enact such a tax up to one per cent without a vote of the people. We believe the Ohio Assembly should extend that authority to one and a half per cent.

SCHOOL DISTRICTS. Real estate. Each district should be required to commit itself to a millage minimum for operating funds and capital improvement before it can qualify for state aid. The state would have to contribute liberally to elementary and secondary education to compensate for imbalances in property valuation and to guarantee quality beyond the capacity of real estate to assure it.

COUNTIES and TOWNSHIPS. A new form of special taxation by the legislature and would be applicable upon action by the commissioners. Townships would share in this tax in some equitable percentage, where now they exist on subsistence budgets completely inadequate to meet basic needs.

TAXATION in any form is a nasty word to most taxpayers.

Taxation, with or without representation, is the bane of all politicians in a popular government.

It cannot be made palatable. It could be made tolerable with less complexity and more simplicity in the distribution of the burden.

What is needed is the courage to tackle tax reform.

What is indispensable is to see the need for tax change.

They Would Get The Message

We wish every Ohio lawmaker and law enforcer would take to heart a statement by Rep. Gordon M. Scherer, R-Hamilton, on the omnibus highway safety bill he is co-sponsoring in the General Assembly.

"We no longer can afford to be a nation of bleeding hearts where the dangerous driver is concerned," said Rep. Scherer.

The state's chronic drunks, speeders, scofflaws and highway cutups have been counting on soft-hearted judges and in some instances soft-headed legislators to get them out of their self-inflicted troubles.

They have been weaving their way through traffic happy in the knowledge they will be given the benefit of every doubt and the protection of every legal dodge if they maim or kill someone.

They have rested secure in a king-bird seat behind the steering wheel, figuring that the worst thing they can be given is a fine and a jail term even though they may have sent someone to the morgue.

Rep. Scherer says it is going to take more than slogans and good intentions to stop highway slaughterers.

He could have gone the rest of the way and identified the slaughterers.

Their identity is no mystery.

Most serious accidents are caused by autoists operating on a thin margin of safety. They have been in accidents before. They go looking for an accident every time they get back of the wheel.

They are at the opposite end of the scale from where safe drivers are found — where drivers go out of their way to avoid trouble and pile up long-running accident-free records that underlie all highway safety.

If traffic laws were not made and administered by bleeding hearts, there would be less bleeding and dying on highways. Chronic maimers and killers would get the message in a hurry.

If they could expect no more mercy than they had shown by their own bad behavior, they would see the light. It would be the Golden Rule in reverse — Do unto them as they will keep doing to us if they aren't stopped.

Flower-Pickin' Shame

Please don't pick the daisies — or the flowers and plants anywhere in the district's woods or fields.

Some species are in danger of extinction as a result of the growth of urban areas, strip-mining and the practice of flower picking.

Harry Stewart, Review outdoors editor, points out picking of flowers is illegal on state property, and a poor practice anywhere if prevention of seeding jeopardizes new growth.

Leave the blooms for the next person, and for the next generation of plants to help keep the natural beauty we are fortunate to enjoy in our area hills and valleys.

Odd Facts

Any auditorium or hall has good acoustics for speech and music if it is properly shaped to reflect useful sound to listeners — without disturbing echoes. A "useful" reflection is one that arrives at the listener's ear within 1-20 of a second after the sound is emitted by the speaker or musical instrument. If the reflection is delayed longer, it becomes a disturbing echo.

Because of American free-enterprise advances in agricultural science and farm machinery, the United States today grows about twice as much food on about the same acreage as 50 years ago.

Meany Names Heir Apparent

By Victor Riesel

WASHINGTON — Easy lies the head that wears the crown inside labor today. It rests squarely, albeit sometimes jauntily, upon the robust 72-year-old George Meany, who scoffs at retiring—but the word within the sanctum is that he appears to have named a very apparent heir.

Victor Riesel

The new crown prince will wince at the description for his is a rugged whirl-windish sailor who always is where the action is, or rather it is where he is since he is Paul Hall, president of the Searfarers International Union.

If insiders are right, this will send rumbles across country soon and shake up many a community. And the evidence of the succession—though not very impending—seems to be there, all right.

It came about quite simply. Walter Reuther abdicated virtually all his titles not too long ago, including his 11-year-old chairmanship of the AFL-CIO's Standing Committee on Organization. This was the sign that he had forever abandoned hopes for leadership of the 14 million-member movement—the free world's largest.

The other day there came to the desk of Paul Hall a short letter from Meany naming the seafarer as Reuther's successor to this crucial post.

Why crucial?

It was created to be the second spot in labor's hierarchy—and by none other than the movement's special counsel at the time, Arthur J. Goldberg. There was much maneuvering back in 1955 when the AFL and CIO chieftains were jousting for position while merging their two massive organizations.

THERE NEVER WAS any doubt that Meany would be president. But Reuther, even then not his most ardent admirer, wanted guarantees that he would some day succeed the "plumber." Goldberg, always the peacemaker and molder of compromises, devised the Committee on Organization. This would be the power seat. From this position Reuther could launch drives, stay in the public spotlight, crisscross the nation and deliver mass appeals to the masses.

This was fine with Meany. To show his good faith he not only agreed to Reuther, the former head of the CIO, controlling the strategic Committee on Organization, but also turned over most of the key departments to former CIO aides of Reuther.

Furthermore, Meany called in brother Victor Reuther and offered to appoint him special assistant to the AFL-CIO president. This would have put a Reuther right inside the sanctum. Victor Reuther rejected this and went to work for his brother as head of the Auto Union's own state department.

Still Meany did not pass over any chance to move the Reuthers and their colleagues closer to the central organization. The AFL-CIO president then named an auto union leader, Jack Livingston, Director of Organization—in a sense a subsidiary of the committee. When Livingston resigned, Meany replaced him with another auto union man, Bill Kirsche.

It positively was Meany's intention to sign sometime along 1963 or '65. But Reuther cut loose on him and Meany never quite under tongue lash or firebrands. So he stayed. And he loves it.

NOW PAUL HALL is in Reuther's old juggernaut. The sailor, who burns daylight and sometimes flies 10 to 15 thousand miles a week, plans to unionize the ununionized.

"Target Organization," he calls it.

"Remember when the CIO had operation Dixie?" he asked an inquiring friend the other day. 'It could not succeed. It was too broad. It dissipated labor's strength.

"But, let us zoom in on a taget and whittle down the size of the battlefield but not the size of our army or war chest."

Though he has flayed the auto union leader at the drop of a Reutherian dialectic, Hall praised him for developing concentration tactics—especially in the Los Angeles area. There, says Hall, in one of the toughest areas in which labor can attempt to unionize, target concentration has succeeded.

SOME YEARS AGO the region was selected by the national organization committee for concentration. All unions in the Los Angeles and Orange Counties were set up in divisions. Then they created a "Combined Divisions" system. They unionized anybody who would join in any sort of plant or shop. Then the workers were sifted into their proper unions.

Last Feb. 20 the Combined Divisions representatives met in the Rodger Young auditorium. They heard that they had unionized 94,930 in all in the counties.

Now Hall will try to emulate this in other target areas. To use his own word, there will be many a rumble throughout the land.

Thus easy lies the head that wears the crown inside labor today. He has a stalwart by his side.

The wild ox of Asia, known as the Yak, inhabits the cold, dry plateaus of Tibet, often more than 16,000 feet above sea level. The wild yak stands more than six feet high at the shoulders, and weighs between 1,100 and 1,200 pounds. It is an agile creature, despite its bulk, and can slide down icy mountainsides, swim the swiftest rivers, and race across steep rock slides.

One of the biggest of the giant sequoia trees is the General Sherman Tree, in Sequoia National Park, California. It is 272.4 feet high and the base of its trunk is 32.7 feet in diameter. It has been estimated that this tree alone would yield more than 600,000 board feet of lumber.

Tight-Lipped

By James Marlow

LBJ Silent On Middle East

WASHINGTON

Silence is like a headache: You never hear it happen and only realize it's there gradually.

President Johnson has been almost totally silent on the Middle East crisis. If that seems strange, it shouldn't. It is only the latest example of the tight-lipped policy he has been following for months.

In this particular case it may have been necessary for Johnson and his whole administration to clam up while they try to work out a solution behind the scenes.

If he said anything supporting Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser, it might take the starch out of the Israelis. If he flatly backed Israel, it might render Nasser so self-conscious, with the Arab world watching, that he would feel compelled to take drastic action in defiance.

And one good reason for Johnson's not making any threats is the fact that he has to worry about the unpredictable Soviets, since he can't be sure what their interests are in this crisis or even whether they stirred up the whole thing.

BUT THIS IS quite a different Johnson from the one who kept dashing before the television cameras, almost panting with pronouncements, at the start of the Dominican Republic crisis in 1965.

If there's any explanation for the difference between the Johnson of 1965 and the Johnson of today it lies in some undisclosed decision to make a complete switch in tactics.

This seems a realistic conclusion because the switch has been so obvious.

In the Dominican case, perhaps Johnson's worst public relations performance, he was criticized on two counts: for intervening at all, although he said it was to prevent a Communist takeover; and for those repeated, excited - looking appearances on television.

If he had to do it over again Johnson no doubt would use the troops because he was convinced of the Communist danger. But he probably would limit his public appearances.

The bad reaction he got at the time apparently didn't dent his eagerness to talk and explain to the American public. But after that his popularity in the opinion polls gradually went down.

He must have decided on a severe change in the fall of 1966 when he took practically no part in the election campaigns. After the elections, bad for the Democrats, he withdrew into almost total silence.

The first glimpse of the new Johnson came in his news conference last Dec. 31. Instead of bubbling, as in the past, he limited himself to yes or no or matter-of-fact answers, a method he hadn't tried before.

HE HAS followed that system ever since although he has had a lot to say about the war in Vietnam. But what has he said about the war. Nothing flamboyant, that's for sure, and not much besides repeating that this country is always ready to talk peace if the North Vietnamese are.

Oddly enough, Johnson's restraint about the war, his lack of threats, has probably made the North Vietnamese feel he is far tougher than they had imagined earlier.

And for this reason: While he continues to express goodwill — at least to the extent of saying he wants peace — he intensified the war.

Johnson's present - day silence about his plans and much of his thinking is probably more truly a part of his nature than his bouncy talkativeness ever was. One has only to look back a few years to see why.

He wasn't a very talkative Democratic Senate majority leader from 1955 until he became vice president in 1961. But for getting things done he was outstanding, probably the best Senate leader in history.

He got his work done by conference, compromises, the armtwisting. He played the cards close to his chest.

'Challenges' Outlined At Lisbon's Graduation

LISBON — "Are You Finished Now?" Dr. Robert E. Wilson of Kent State University asked the class of 1967 just before presentation of diplomas Friday night at War Memorial Stadium.

The question was the theme of his address at David Anderson High School's 97th annual commencement.

"No," he told the seniors. "There is no way for you to graduate in your lifetime. The chances are very good that for the rest of your life you will be spending much of your time in some kind of school."

—:—

DR. WILSON said the automation of work and the so - called knowledge explosion is bringing this about. He said there are 50 million people in accredited schools and another 50 million in informal training schools. Industry alone operates 35,000 schools in this country, he added.

Dr. Wilson said economists predict that by 2000 A.D., 80 per cent of the working force in this country will be in service occupations — education, health and recreations — compared with 60 per cent today.

He pointed to these challenges "one - fifth our population living in squalor in spite of national prosperity; 51 per cent of the world's population living on an annual income of less than $100; a nation founded by people seeking freedom and peace finding itself each year with fewer freedoms and each generation involved in foreign wars; and a nation with the creative mind to send men into space still unable to find space next door for a man who happens to have a different pigmentation of his skin."

Co-valedictorians Beverly Webber and James Kelm gave brief addresses from the rostrum on the 50-yard line, facing their classmates on the field and the spectators in the stands.

THE HIGH school band directed by David May played "Pomp and Circumstance" for the processional and "Born to be Free."

Report Reveals Last Month Cool, Wet Over District

If you thought May was cold and wet, you were right, according to Edwin Copeland, U. S. weather observer at Millport, whose monthly summary reveals temperatures and rainfall neared some record extremes.

The average temperature last month was 52 degrees, well below the normal 57.9 degrees for the month in his 74-year records.

The two coldest Mays on his books were recorded in 1917 with an average of 51.6 degrees and in 1924 with an average of 51.7 degrees.

The mercury went down to 30 degrees May 8 and up to a high of 86 degrees May 27.

Rainfall was also abnormal with a total of 5.73 inches reported by Copeland, compared with the normal 3.43 inches for May.

This continued a wet trend for the year, since the first five months of 1967 have had 16.99 inches of rain — 2.17 inches over the normal.

Last month was the fifth wettest May in the district. Copeland said. The previous four are 1956 with 8 inches, 1946 with 6.55 inches, 1929 with 6.5 inches and 1927 with 5.78 inches.

Due to the subnormal temperatures and rainfall, district trees were two weeks late coming in leaf, and the planting season has been delayed.

Sunshine amounted to only 54 per cent, compared with the normal 60 per cent. There were 16 clear days, 12 cloudy and three partly cloudy days.

A MOMENT OF MEDITATION
Being Sure That We Are Saved

Often times when we hear people talk about being saved, they offer different ways to serve as evidence of their salvation. One will say that he knows he is saved because of a strange experience that happened to him. Another will say that he is sure of salvation because of a feeling he has deep in his heart. One will tell us that he prayed to God and that he began to feel different and thus he knew that God had saved him.

In our article today we would like to study some of the teachings of the Word of God regarding how a person can know that God has saved him.

First, let it be noted that the knowledge of our salvation is not based on strange feelings or strange happenings. Let us notice this statement of John in 1 Jno. 2:3. "And herby we do know that we know him, if we keep his commandments." John thus states that the way that we know that we are right with God is to be keeping the commands of God. Thus we can be sure of our salvation by doing what God says.

It might be wise just here to stop and point out what God has commanded about salvation. If we have done what God commands, we will then know that we are saved. God has commanded that we have faith in Him and in His Son. Heb. 11: 6. Because of our faith we are commanded to repent of our past sins. Acts 17:30, 31. To repent merely means that we turn away from our sins and then do better in our lives.

Next we are told to confess openly before men our faith in Jesus Christ. Mt. 10:32. We are then commanded to be baptized. Acts 10:48. Upon completing these steps, God has promised forgiveness and the remission of past sins. Mk. 16:16; Acts 2: 38.

Going back now to the statement of John we learned that we are sure of knowing God when we keep His Words. His Commandments involve faith, repentance, confession, and baptism. If I have kept these commandments of the Lord, I will then know that God has saved me from my past sins. If I have not done as God commanded, I am yet in my sins.

Paul teaches in Rom. 6:17, 18 that we are made free from our sins when we obey from the heart that form of doctrine that was delivered unto us. The "form" of doctrine to which he refers is found in Rom. 6:1-5. Jesus died, was buried, and arose again from the grave. We obey a form of that when we die to sins, are buried with Him by baptism, and are resurrected to walk in newness of life. In this passage we again see the necessity of faith, repentance, confession, and baptism.

We can know that we are saved if we do God's Will. Have you obeyed these commands of the Lord? If not, let me urge you to do so at once. We cannot afford to be lost.

Report Reveals Last Month Cool, Wet Over District

If you thought May was cold and wet, you were right, according to Edwin Copeland, U. S. weather observer at Millport, whose monthly summary reveals temperatures and rainfall neared some record extremes.

The average temperature last month was 52 degrees, well below the normal 57.9 degrees for the month in his 74-year records.

The two coldest Mays on his books were recorded in 1917 with an average of 51.6 degrees and in 1924 with an average of 51.7 degrees.

The mercury went down to 30 degrees May 8 and up to a high of 86 degrees May 27.

Rainfall was also abnormal with a total of 5.73 inches reported by Copeland, compared with the normal 3.43 inches for May.

This continued a wet trend for the year, since the first five months of 1967 have had 16.99 inches of rain — 2.17 inches over the normal.

Last month was the fifth wettest May in the district. Copeland said. The previous four are 1956 with 8 inches, 1946 with 6.55 inches, 1929 with 6.5 inches and 1927 with 5.78 inches.

Due to the subnormal temperatures and rainfall, district trees were two weeks late coming in leaf, and the planting season has been delayed.

Sunshine amounted to only 54 per cent, compared with the normal 60 per cent. There were 16 clear days, 12 cloudy and three partly cloudy days.

A MOMENT OF MEDITATION

Being Sure That We Are Saved

Often times when we hear people talk about being saved, they offer different ways to serve as evidence of their salvation. One will say that he knows he is saved because of a strange experience that happened to him. Another will say that he is sure of salvation because of a feeling he has deep in his heart. One will tell us that he prayed to God and that he began to feel different and thus he knew that God had saved him.

In our article today we would like to study some of the teachings of the Word of God regarding how a person can know that God has saved him.

First, let it be noted that the knowledge of our salvation is not based on strange feelings or strange happenings. Let us notice this statement of John in 1 Jno. 2:3. "And herby we do know that we know him, if we keep his commandments." John thus states that the way that we know that we are right with God is to be keeping the commands of God. Thus we can be sure of our salvation by doing what God says.

It might be wise just here to stop and point out what God has commanded about salvation. If we have done what God commands, we will then know that we are saved. God has commanded that we have faith in Him and in His Son. Heb. 11: 6. Because of our faith we are commanded to repent of our past sins. Acts 17:30, 31. To repent merely means that we turn away from our sins and then do better in our lives.

Next we are told to confess openly before men our faith in Jesus Christ. Mt. 10:32. We are then commanded to be baptized. Acts 10:48. Upon completing these steps, God has promised forgiveness and the remission of past sins. Mk. 16:16; Acts 2:38.

Going back now to the statement of John we learned that we are sure of knowing God when we keep His Words. His Commandments involve faith, repentance, confession, and baptism. If I have kept these commandments of the Lord, I will then know that God has saved me from my past sins. If I have not done as God commanded, I am yet in my sins.

Paul teaches in Rom. 6:17, 18 that we are made free from our sins when we obey from the heart that form of doctrine that was delivered unto us. The "form" of doctrine to which he refers is found in Rom. 6:1-5. Jesus died, was buried, and arose again from the grave. We obey a form of that when we die to sins, are buried with Him by baptism, and are resurrected to walk in newness of life. In this passage we again see the necessity of faith, repentance, confession, and baptism.

We can know that we are saved if we do God's Will. Have you obeyed these commands of the Lord? If not, let me urge you to do so at once. We cannot afford to be lost.

Program Set For Outing Of Pottery Union

Three traditional events will highlight the program at the annual Potters Picnic Saturday, June 17, at Meyers Lake Park in Canton.

They are a baby show at 1 p.m. in the indoor dancing pavilion, followed by a penny scramble, and then the "junior bathing beauty contest" at 3 in the open air dance pavilion.

The committee is putting the finishing touches on the program, which is expected to lure thousands of members of the International Brotherhood of Operative Potters and their families and friends to the Stark County resort.

Entrants in the baby show will be divided into three age brackets: Up to one year, 1-2 and 2-3. The first prize in each division will be a $50 Savings Bond. Second place winners will get $25 bonds and those in third place will receive $10 in Savings Stamps.

The same prize schedule will be used in the "bathing beauty" contest, which is for youngsters 4-7. Children must be registered in order to enter, the committee said. A registration booth will operate on the grounds from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The penny scramble will be divided into three age brackets — 5-7, 8-10 and 11-12.

Rides throughout the park, with four exceptions, will be free from 11 a.m. until 1 p.m., the committee announced.

Free coffee and cream will be dispensed throughout the day. Special buses will help carry the crowd from East Liverpool to Meyers Lake. Tickets may be purchased from the drivers on picnic day, the committee said.

New Vehicles Show Rise In Titling Report

LISBON — Columbiana County titled 585 new vehicles in May to maintain a steady climb from 318 in February.

However, statistics in the Car Title Department at the Courthouse show monthly totals the last seven months have been less than for the corresponding months the year before.

There were 642 new vehicles titled in May last year and March of 1966 set an all - time record of 734.

Clerk of Courts Carl L. Stacey said the county treasurer received $9,508 in May from fees collected in Common Pleas Court and the Car Title Department.

Clerks in the legal section of Stacey's office said 125 civil cases were filed last month—the most they can remember. May last year had 69.

Stacey said the state treasurer received $7,121 from the collection of sales and use tax, $60,076 from the dealer's tax, $1,582 from car title fees and $1,067 for inspection certificates.

The county received $4,946 from the title department and $679 for its 1 per cent poundage fee.

Stacey said the title department issued 4,338 auto titles, 49 duplicate titles, 936 memorandums, 12 duplicate memorandums, 1,661 notations of liens, 1,356 cancellations of liens and 1,343 acknowledgments.

Program Set For Outing Of Pottery Union

Three traditional events will highlight the program at the annual Potters Picnic Saturday, June 17, at Meyers Lake Park in Canton.

They are a baby show at 1 p.m. in the indoor dancing pavilion, followed by a penny scramble, and then the "junior bathing beauty contest" at 3 in the open air dance pavilion.

The committee is putting the finishing touches on the program, which is expected to lure thousands of members of the International Brotherhood of Operative Potters and their families and friends to the Stark County resort.

Entrants in the baby show will be divided into three age brackets: Up to one year, 1-2 and 2-3. The first prize in each division will be a $50 Savings Bond. Second place winners will get $25 bonds and those in third place will receive $10 in Savings Stamps.

The same prize schedule will be used in the "bathing beauty" contest, which is for youngsters 4-7. Children must be registered in order to enter, the committee said. A registration booth will operate on the grounds from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The penny scramble will be divided into three age brackets — 5-7, 8-10 and 11-12.

Rides throughout the park, with four exceptions, will be free from 11 a.m. until 1 p.m., the committee announced.

Free coffee and cream will be dispensed throughout the day. Special buses will help carry the crowd from East Liverpool to Meyers Lake. Tickets may be purchased from the drivers on picnic day, the committee said.

New Vehicles Show Rise In Titling Report

LISBON — Columbiana County titled 585 new vehicles in May to maintain a steady climb from 318 in February.

However, statistics in the Car Title Department at the Courthouse show monthly totals the last seven months have been less than for the corresponding months the year before.

There were 642 new vehicles titled in May last year and March of 1966 set an all - time record of 734.

Clerk of Courts Carl L. Stacey said the county treasurer received $9,508 in May from fees collected in Common Pleas Court and the Car Title Department.

Clerks in the legal section of Stacey's office said 125 civil cases were filed last month—the most they can remember. May last year had 69.

Stacey said the state treasurer received $7,121 from the collection of sales and use tax, $60,076 from the dealer's tax, $1,582 from car title fees and $1,067 for inspection certificates.

The county received $4,946 from the title department and $679 for its 1 per cent poundage fee.

Stacey said the title department issued 4,338 auto titles, 49 duplicate titles, 936 memorandums, 12 duplicate memorandums, 1,661 notations of liens, 1,356 cancellations of liens and 1,343 acknowledgments.

Red Cross Observes 50 Years In District

By THOMAS FUTHEY

Members of the Red Cross volunteer driver service of several years ago are shown lined up before the chapter station wagon. Left to right were Mrs. Betty Sant, Mrs. Vera Boulton, Mrs. Gertrude Sixt, the late Mrs. Ruth McNutt, Mrs. Doris Marshall, Mrs. Ann Hagen, Mrs. Ruth Cramer, Mrs. Myrtle McCoy, the late Mrs. Gladys Bourne and Mrs. Ruth Pickin.

Recollections of her earliest days with the East Liverpool Area Red Cross chapter and the story of a "spy" infiltrating the local group making surgical dressings during World War II are remembrances shared with area residents by Mrs. Sara Simms Ostermann in connection with the 50th anniversary of the chapter.

Mrs. Ostermann, who has served 51 years in various capacities, recalls the early days in 1916 when there was no organized chapter here.

The women then worked as an auxiliary of the Cleveland Chapter with Mrs. Ostermann as local chairman. The group met in St. Stephen's Episcopal Church Parish House with between 25 and 30 women sewing sheets and pillow cases for the military branches in the first World War.

On June 8, 1917, a charter was granted to the group. The new chapter continued to sew and knit for the war effort in a corner basement room of the high school building, still used for that purpose today by the school home economics department.

Mrs. Ostermann said in those days the membership grew so fast the chapter soon had to move to the second floor of the Carnegie Library. In 1918 the chapter quarters were again moved, this time to the 4th floor of the Potters Savings & Loan building where surgical dressings were made.

The late Edwin M. Knowles was the first chapter chairman, and Harold Barth, still active in local civic affairs, its first secretary.

Mrs. Ostermann was chairman from 1920 until 1922.

WHEN THE ARMISTICE was declared, women of the chapter continued the program with a nursing service, including a public health nurse who began working for the city in 1921.

During the twenties the chapter made clothes for the civilian relief program and conducted veteran's aid work.

The civilian relief work continued throughout the depression. In 1931, the chapter began distributing flour and clothes from the federal government.

When World War II began, the chapter again swung into action making surgical dressings and doing other military-connected work. It was during the war effort, Mrs. Ostermann recalls, that a "spy" infiltrated the chapter.

"I've never told this to anyone", Mrs. Ostermann said in recalling the incident:

"One day a girl came to the local office and asked if she could work making surgical dressings. She said she and her mother were visiting relatives in the East End. So, we put her to work.

"She did a fine job, her dressings were perfect; I was sure she had experience by the fine work she turned out. She asked if she couldn't stay after the others left, but I told her it was against the rules. She came back that evening, however, and continued to work after that.

"Then one day the FBI came and questioned me about the girl. I never knew just what happened to her, or if she were picked up by the FBI. The agent said she and her mother had been kept in New York City by the Japanese, and I guess she was sent here."

"AFTER THE FBI agent came," she continued, "I never let any of the girl's dressings be shipped out with the others. And I cautioned the other women not to talk about when their boys were sailing, what they were doing or where they were stationed, but I never told them why."

The war was not all that worried area residents. In 1942, according to Mrs. Phyllis Ball, who outlined the local chapter's duties during World War II, the local organization had to contend with a flood that caused 80 families with a total of 350 persons to be evacuated. Again in 1945, a flood forced evacuation of 23 families.

The flood of 1936, recalls Mrs. Ostermann, saw the chapter set up a canteen in a brewery on Webber Way, using its copper kettles to cook food for those who had to be taken from their homes.

It was in 1937 the water safety program along with first aid training was started.

During the previous year the chapter had moved to its present location, the Mary Patterson Memorial on E. 4th St.

Mrs. Sarah Ostermann, front left, veteran Red Cross aide, leads a procession of women volunteers in a city parade in 1917.

One of the most popular projects of the chapter has been water safety, involving swimming, resuscitation and boating.

During World War I, the offices were on Market St. where Western Union is now located.

It was during World War II that an auxiliary unit was begun in Salineville with Miss Edna Kirk in charge of surgical dressings.

World War II also brought about a change in the Red Cross image. It was during that period a Junior Red Cross movement was organized locally. Mrs. F. D. Irwin was its first director, continuing to head the program—now called Youth Red Cross—for nearly 25 years.

FOLLOWING THE war, Red Cross work has continued to expand. The water safety program is now one of the summer's biggest projects, and first aid training is held in the district throughout the year.

The present executive director of the program is diligent Mary Catherine Brady who came to the local chapter in 1965. Previously she had been a field representative for the national organization working in this area since 1953.

Under her guidance and that of the present chairman of volunteers, Mrs. J. Donald Thompson, programs of volunteer aides in the junior high school health services, increased volunteer hours at City Hospital and Osteopathic Hospital and other community work have flourished. Assistance to families of servicemen and for military men overseas has taken a great deal of the chapter's time lately.

During the past two Christmas seasons, servicemen stationed out of the country have been able to hear from their families through a program known as "Voices from Home," instituted by the Red Cross and carried out locally with cooperation of Radio Station WOHI.

Another recent program has seen high school volunteers now giving hours of service in area nursing homes.

Mrs. Thompson, who has served the local chapter since coming to East Liverpool in 1922, has been chairman of the office of volunteers for the past six years.

She is presently an active first-aid instructor, a national volunteer field consultant, a member of the Eastern Area advisory committee in Alexandria, Va., for 6 years and a hospital volunteer. During World War II, she served as a nurses aide.

Red Cross Observes 50 Years In District

By THOMAS FUTHEY

Recollections of her earliest days with the East Liverpool Area Red Cross chapter and the story of a "spy" infiltrating the local group making surgical dressings during World War II are remembrances shared with area residents by Mrs. Sara Simms Ostermann in connection with the 50th anniversary of the chapter.

Mrs. Ostermann, who has served 51 years in various capacities, recalls the early days in 1916 when there was no organized chapter here.

The women then worked as an auxiliary of the Cleveland Chapter with Mrs. Ostermann as local chairman. The group met in St. Stephen's Episcopal Church Parish House with between 25 and 30 women sewing sheets and pillow cases for the military branches in the first World War.

On June 8, 1917, a charter was granted to the group. The new chapter continued to sew and knit for the war effort in a corner basement room of the high school building, still used for that purpose today by the school home economics department.

Mrs. Ostermann said in those days the membership grew so fast the chapter soon had to move to the second floor of the

Carnegie Library. In 1918 the chapter quarters were again moved, this time to the 4th floor of the Potters Savings & Loan building where surgical dressings were made.

The late Edwin M. Knowles was the first chapter chairman, and Harold Barth, still active in local civic affairs, its first secretary.

Mrs. Ostermann was chairman from 1920 until 1922.

WHEN THE ARMISTICE was declared, women of the chapter continued the program with a nursing service, including a public health nurse who began working for the city in 1921.

During the twenties the chapter made clothes for the civilian relief program and conducted veteran's aid work.

The civilian relief work continued throughout the depression. In 1931, the chapter began distributing flour and clothes from the federal government.

When World War II began, the chapter again swung into action making surgical dressings and doing other military-connected work. It was during the war effort, Mrs. Ostermann recalls, that a "spy" infiltrated the chapter.

"I've never told this to anyone", Mrs. Ostermann said in recalling the incident:

"One day a girl came to the local office and asked if she could work making surgical dressings. She said she and her mother were visiting relatives in the East End. So, we put her to work.

"She did a fine job, her dressings were perfect; I was sure she had experience by the fine work she turned out. She asked if she couldn't stay after the others left, but I told her it was against the rules. She came back that evening, however, and continued to work after that.

"Then one day the FBI came and questioned me about the girl. I never knew just what happened to her, or if she were picked up by the FBI. The agent said she and her mother had been kept in New York City by the Japanese, and I guess she was sent here."

"AFTER THE FBI agent came," she continued, "I never let any of the girl's dressings be shipped out with the others. And I cautioned the other women not to talk about when their boys were sailing, what they were doing or where they were stationed, but I never told them why."

The war was not all that worried area residents. In 1942, according to Mrs. Phyllis Ball, who outlined the local chapter's duties during World War II, the local organization had to contend with a flood that caused 80 families with a total of 350 persons to be evacuated. Again in 1945, a flood forced evacuation of 23 families.

The flood of 1936, recalls Mrs. Ostermann, saw the chapter set up a canteen in a brewery on Webber Way, using its copper kettles to cook food for those who had to be taken from their homes.

It was in 1937 the water safety program along with first aid training was started.

During the previous year the chapter had moved to its present location, the Mary Patterson Memorial on E. 4th St.

Mrs. Sarah Ostermann, front left, veteran Red Cross aide, leads a procession of women volunteers in a city parade in 1917.

One of the most popular projects of the chapter has been water safety, involving swimming, resuscitation and boating.

During World War I, the offices were on Market St. where Western Union is now located.

It was during World War II that an auxiliary unit was begun in Salineville with Miss Edna Kirk in charge of surgical dressings.

World War II also brought about a change in the Red Cross image. It was during that period a Junior Red Cross movement was organized locally. Mrs. F. D. Irwin was its first director, continuing to head the program—now called Youth Red Cross—for nearly 25 years.

FOLLOWING THE war, Red Cross work has continued to expand. The water safety program is now one of the summer's biggest projects, and first aid training is held in the district throughout the year.

The present executive director of the program is diligent Mary Catherine Brady who came to the local chapter in 1965. Previously she had been a field representative for the national organization working in this area since 1953.

Under her guidance and that of the present chairman of volunteers, Mrs. J. Donald Thompson, programs of volunteer aides in the junior high school health services, increased volunteer hours at City Hospital and Osteopathic Hospital and other community work have flourished. Assistance to families of servicemen and for military men overseas has taken a great deal of the chapter's time lately.

During the past two Christmas seasons, servicemen stationed out of the country have been able to hear from their families through a program known as "Voices from Home," instituted by the Red Cross and carried out locally with cooperation of Radio Station WOHI.

Another recent program has seen high school volunteers now giving hours of service in area nursing homes.

Mrs. Thompson, who has served the local chapter since coming to East Liverpool in 1922, has been chairman of the office of volunteers for the past six years.

She is presently an active first-aid instructor, a national volunteer field consultant, a member of the Eastern Area advisory committee in Alexandria, Va., for 6 years and a hospital volunteer. During World War II, she served as a nurses aide.

THE TRI-STATE AREA is faced with the possible extinction of some of its wildlife.

The term "endangered wildlife" is one that is broad in meaning and not uncommon to most of us. Yet, we often pay little heed to it because it is something we believe we are not directly connected with.

But, each of us now must become aware of the danger that is present and take action to combat the threat.

If we look at the term over the entirety of its scope, we here in the tri-state area have been and are associated with whatever way the balance of nature falls.

Protection of plants and animals is a job that belongs to all of us. It is not just the responsibility of the conservationist, the sportsman, the nature lover or state officials assigned to oversee the operation of our fields and streams.

Columbiana, Hancock and Beaver Counties once abounded in game and plant life that no longer exists. Many animals disappeared from the scene with the advance of civilization. Some species could have survived and would be present today had better judgment been used.

What is past is past. We cannot change this, but we can help to mold the future to some minute extent so that the same problems will not face future generations and something of the outdoors will be left for them to enjoy.

All plants and animals need protection. Management is a better word, for nothing can or should be completely protected to the point where it becomes a liability rather than an asset.

In Ohio and in the neighboring states, all plants and flowers are protected by a ban against picking on public lands. However, this practice is carried on to varying extents by the general public. Even on private lands, plants should not be disturbed without the permission of the landowner.

Many plants are destroyed when their habitat is changed or destroyed. Some fail to seed once the flower has been picked. The setting of seed is necessary for the plant to grow another year. Should enough of this type be destroyed, the plants could disappear from the scene.

It may seem far fetched, but at one time this area abounded in numerous birds and many larger species of game that no longer exist. They were attracted to the valley by the lush countryside and the Ohio River.

Man harvested indiscriminately and the animals disappeared.

Now man is attempting to harvest flowers and plant life. Over the years, they too could disappear.

I have seen examples of this in area parks. At Beaver Creek State Park persons have come back from hikes along the trails loaded with wildflowers. They quickly wilt and often are discarded along the trail before the individual completes the hike. Other times they are carried to the car and then thrown out a window along the roadside.

These flowers cannot be admired and enjoyed by others, and even the person who picked them finds they are not as beautiful when removed from their natural surroundings.

Flowers that never should be picked—because the seeds are destroyed—include lady's slippers, lady's tresses, fringed gentian, bottle gentian, flowering dogwood, rose gentian, wild lilies, showy orchids, crested iris, squirrel corn, shooting star, bloodroot, bluebells, anemones, dutchman's breeches, jack-in-the-pulpit, birdfoot violet, fawnlily or troutlily and azaleas.

Other species can be picked, some sparingly, without too much harm. The point to remember, though, is that it is illegal to pick them in state parks.

Much of our woodlands and fields is being destroyed daily by strip mining processes. More and more land is cleared daily for housing. Each day the area for animals and plants to survive in grows smaller.

We do not help by unnecessarily harvesting that which we cannot use.

THIS IS TRUE for all forms of wildlife. The list of endangered wildlife is long. It may not seem like much, but we here in this area can help to some extent by preserving what is left.

At one time beavers were nearly extinct in Ohio. Through protection and management, they began to increase in numbers until a few years ago a limited trapping season was permitted in certain counties, Columbiana for one.

Two years ago on Beaver Creek, in what could be considered a rather remote area, I discovered the start of a new colony of beaver. I believe there was a pair. The following year another check revealed the colony had increased.

I never told anyone. Last winter they were still there. Early this year they were gone. Although I could never prove it, I believe they were shot by someone with a rifle. To the uneducated, perhaps they were not valuable and only a wild animal to be killed.

Had they been left unmolested, in one or two more years some trapper could have harvested some of them and never harmed the colony.

The great danger is overharvesting. When the number of a species grows small, there is always the danger of a natural catastrophy wiping out what is left.

I know another area in Columbiana County where a small deer herd seems to perfer. Although deer travel, they return to the area because of its natural protection and the feed available.

From all indications the past two years, the herd has increased. Not greatly, but the number is growing. I hope it continues. The process is slow, but so was the process of destruction.

COLUMBIANA COUNTY'S trout derby last Saturday was successful in most respects although the fish did not cooperate to the fullest extent.

More than 500 persons visited Beaver Creek State Park during the day, and at times fishermen were elbow to elbow along the creek bank.

Approximately 400 trout were dumped into the creek and about 100 were caught.

Avery Heck, 13, of East Liverpool took first prize with a 11½-inch rainbow. He won a rod and reel.

Glen Oliver of East Liverpool, Larry Blakely of Wellsville and Jim Coleman of Irondale won the other prizes.

Prizes were donated by Hills Department Store of St. Clair Plaza, Don Smith's Barber Shop at Wellsville, Western Auto of Wellsville, and Salem Hunt Club, the sponsoring organization, and an anonymous merchant.

Cards will be sent the prize winners informing them where and how they can claim their prizes.

Some of the trout were tagged, and anglers catching tagged trout are requested to send the tag, name, address, date, place and size of trout to Ohio Division of Wildlife, District Three, Box 2751, Firestone Park Station, Akron, 44301.

FAIRLY GOOD FISHING is reported from most quarters. Bass are hitting. Crappies are biting good and some nice muskies are being taken.

Pick your spot and try your luck. While you're at it, take a youngster with you. Introduce them to enjoyment of nature.

District Girl Gives Helping Hand To Elderly In Sorority's Project

Someone to talk to, someone to give a little encouragement.

That's the role a Summitville college coed is filling by helping elderly or bedridden people in the Greenville, S.C., area.

Loretta Phillips, daughter of Mayor and Mrs. Ernest Phillips of Summitville, is a freshman majoring in business at Bob Jones University at Greenville.

She is one of 30 members of Chi Sigma Phi Literary Society of the university which is taking part in the aid project.

Every Saturday about five teams of girls have gone out to different homes in the Greenville area where there is a need for their help. Armed with mops, buckets, cleansers and dust cloths, they have gone in ready to assist. The students do not take any pay for their aid which they consider a "work of love."

USUALLY those in need are elderly or bedridden. Many, having had a group at their home before, greet the girls like old friends. "Their greatest need," says Miss Phillips, "seems to be just to have somebody to talk with — and we have tried to fill that need, too. Some have appreciated our coming so much that they cook or bake for us just to do something nice in return."

In one case Miss Phillips and several other girls went to clean the house of an elderly couple. The wife had had a stroke and was almost an invalid; she couldn't speak and was unable even to recognize her husband. The lonely old man had been taking care of her and doing all the work around the house.

Several days after the girls had been there, the couple's son called one of them on the telephone. "My dad had been just about to give up completely," he said. "But you girls coming to help him and talk with him this last Saturday really did something for his morale. I wonder if you would be willing to come out every Saturday?"

The girls continued going each week after that, and the elderly man took a new lease on life. He even started to memorize poetry and chapters from the Bible to recite to the girls when they came.

Last Christmas the young people took baskets of fruits and nuts around to the various homes where they had worked. One old couple received theirs with tears in their eyes —they could hardly believe that the girls would not only do their housework, but also remember them at Christmas. Their previous Christmas had been bleak and giftless.

HOMES THAT the girls visit often have been dark, dirty, and cheerless. The girls have gone in and pulled up the shades, opened the windows, then washed them. Gloom has been chased away as young people have gone about their work singing, and before long the old folks have joined them in their old favorite hymns.

Concerning this extra-curricular activity Miss Phillips says, "This work has helped me to understand elderly people and the problems they face. I have found how I can use my health and abilities to help others and make their lives happier. I have found how I can do my part to serve the Lord and help others while I'm in school. I believe that what I have learned will help me tremendously in my lifetime work."

Miss Phillips is no stranger to doing kind things for older people. As head of her youth group at the Calvary Baptist Church she was active in helping to hold services at several homes in the Summitville area.

Area Men In Vietnam Conflict

By LIDA SMITH

A former East Liverpool High School football player stationed about 20 miles from the Vietnam Demilitarized Zone is involved in a game "for keeps" with the Viet Cong.

Marine Cpl. R. Scott Musuraca, 22-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Musuraca of 2601 St. Clair Ave., is a weather observer stationed with an artillery battalion near the border that divides the small country.

Musuraca, who sends up daily meteorological balloons and charts the weather, once spent five days with a group of Vietnamese soldiers.

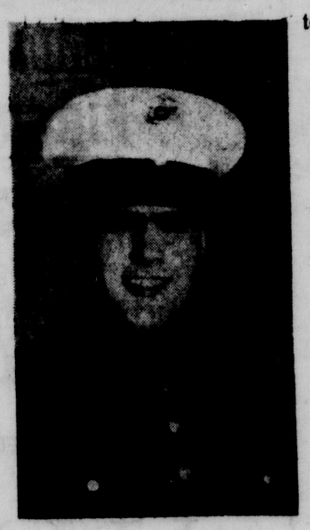
"We went about 20 miles south of here to a town called Phu Loc to act as a liaison for our convoys to Da Nang. Phu Loc is the only area of about 2,000 meters that American artillery can't hit. We have converage on everything from the "zone" to below Da Nang except in that area."

"Anyway, I went down with two radio operators and stayed right with the people and even ate with them at times. It was definitely decent and I'm looking forward to going down again."

Musuraca did indeed visit that camp again and learned to overcome a dislike for rice —a food he would rarely eat at home, but found himself eating as often as three times a day in Vietnam. He has even become proficient at using chopsticks to eat the rice.

HE WROTE home that it "wasn't polite" to ask WHAT he was eating when a guest of the people — and often as not he wouldn't really want to know. The variety of meat runs from dog meat and snake to an occasional rodent. At least, that's what the people "volunteered" to say about their diet.

"It's a little closer to the heart of things, but I felt like I was accomplishing something," he said of his missions



CPL. SCOTT MUSURACA

o Phu Loc and the other areas.

"An ARVN patrol — abbreiation for the Army of the Republic of Vietnam—captured a Viet Cong one night while we were there. He had about 19,000 piasters in his wallet — more than $150 in United States currency—which is quite a bit for a raggedy "gook".

The husky Marine also commented on other happenings in the war zone: "There has been quite a lot of activity going on with our forward elements. So far we have escaped attack, but I don't envy those people north of us."

His work keeps him busy, but he is never so preoccupied that he can forget that just miles away — far less than the distance from East Liverpool to Pittsburgh — Viet Cong are planning attacks and laying in wait.

"I ALSO STAND guard every few days. It would be the most boring thing of all if it weren't so scarey. Imagine sitting just 20 yards from the barbed wire perimeter all night with one other man asleep inside a make - shift sandbag shelter. I can hear all sorts of weird noises."

After Musuraca arrived at Da Nang and later was flown to a location at Hue, he was impressed by the countryside . . ."My first view was a very pretty one with the clouds rolling down off the mountains and surrounding the harbor."

He described his initial weeks of adjusting to the new climate: "We live in tents and sleep on cots. It was pretty nice the first two days. The sun was out and it was really beautiful, but then the sun disappeared and the rains came. We haven't even seen the sun since last Friday (nearly a week before)."

"It doesn't really rain hard, just a steady drizzle with the wind blowing it back in your face. I've got a great cold from being on guard the other night, and from spending all afternoon yesterday providing security for a mine sweeping team."

"One of our trucks hit a mine while outside the perimeter and we had to go out and bring it back in. The vehicle was a small truck and in pretty bad shape. There were four people in it, but luckily, no one was killed — two of the men were hurt rather badly."

"WE FOUND five other mines and bobby traps — all of which we destroyed. They were all U.S. made artillery rounds which hadn't exploded when fired."

So goes a day in the life of this U.S. Marine, who is constantly reading and writing home for more books. His mother said, "Scott always read a lot at home and is continually asking us to send more books of all kinds.

Musuraca plans to attend college when he returns home, but he has not made definite decisions on his studies.

Graduated from East Liverpool High School in 1963, he enlisted in the Marine Corps. He will have been in the service two years in September. He is engaged to Miss Patty Turner, a nurse at City Hospital.

Musuraca's father is employed in the production control department at the Mid-Steel Co. Scott has two brothers — Air Force Lt. Nick Musuraca stationed at the Clark Air Force Base in the Philippine Islands, with whom Scott plans to spend his rest leave this month and Jim Musuraca, a sophomore at East Liverpool High School—and three sisters — Mrs. Donald (Beth) Manuel, whose husband, Spec. 5 Donald Manuel, is stationed in Germany, and Peggy Musuraca, 12, and Maria Musuraca, nearly 11.

Bragging that you never tire of work can make you tiresome to your friends.

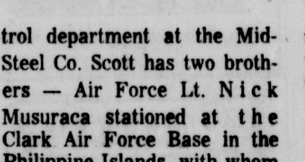
If you think the clinging-vine type of gal has disappeared, you just haven't noticed the motorcycles roaring around town.



Nothing to worry about: Try this: What's coming after automation?

You are middle - aged when jokes that start "You are middle - aged . . ." hit home.

Complaints about mail deliveries flood Washington. Even so, it's hard to beat a five-cent stamp as a bargain in service charges.

You And The Law

"By golly," George told a friend, "I've got so many credit cards now I don't have to use cash."

"Credit cards are fine," the friend replied, "but I certainly don't carry any more than I need and I am darned careful where I use them and that I get them back."

"Well," George said, "these companies keep sending me the cards, so I use them. I don't know what to do with them, anyway."

"IF YOU DON'T want them, get rid of them," the friend replied. "No law says you have to accept a credit card. Personally, I either destroy the card and notify the company that sent it to me what I've done, or chop the thing into little pieces and send it back to them, telling them I do not wish a credit account with their firm. Just for the heck of it, I usually keep one or two bits of the card I cut up so that no one could reconstruct it."

"Well, I'm not worried," George replied. "Look here—here are all my cards. . . Oh, my gosh, the one from Smedlies Department Store is missing."

"Better notify the store real quick, George. Since you're a bachelor, I know your wife doesn't have it, like mine would," the friend replied.

DEPENDING on the situation, and on the terms he agreed to when he accepted the card, George might be liable for any purchases made with his lost credit card.

Under ordinary circumstances, he is not required to pay for goods if the card has been stolen and used without the holder's knowledge. But, once the owner discovers the card is gone, he assumes liability unless he is reasonably prompt in notifying the store.

Ohio law discourages a finder from using the credit card of another. The penalties for such misuse call for imprisonment from one to seven years if the purchase is $60 or more, or $300 fine or 90 days in jail or both, if the purchase is less than $60.

Cocoanut Delight

1 cup cocoanut
1 cup miniature marshmallows
1 cup sour cream
1 cup mandarin oranges
1 cup pineapple chunks

Drain the fruit, mix with the other ingredients, place in serving dish and refrigerate. It's more flavorable if made a day ahead.

The wife had had a stroke and was almost an invalid; she couldn't speak and was unable even to recognize her husband. The lonely old man had been taking care of her and doing all the work around the house.

Several days after the girls had been there, the couple's son called one of them on the telephone. "My dad had been just about to give up completely," he said. "But you girls coming to help him and talk with him this last Saturday really did something for his morale. I wonder if you would be willing to come out every Saturday?"

The girls continued going each week after that, and the elderly man took a new lease on life. He even started to memorize poetry and chapters from the Bible to recite to the girls when they came.

Last Christmas the young people took baskets of fruits and nuts around to the various homes where they had worked. One old couple received theirs with tears in their eyes —they could hardly believe that the girls would not only do their housework, but also remember them at Christmas. Their previous Christmas had been bleak and giftless.

HOMES THAT the girls visit often have been dark, dirty, and cheerless. The girls have gone in and pulled up the shades, opened the windows, then washed them. Gloom has been chased away as young people have gone about their work singing, and before long the old folks have joined them in their old favorite hymns.

Concerning this extra-curricular activity Miss Phillips says, "This work has helped me to understand elderly people and the problems they face. I have found how I can use my health and abilities to help others and make their lives happier. I have found how I can do my part to serve the Lord and help others while I'm in school. I believe that what I have learned will help me tremendously in my lifetime work."

Miss Phillips is no stranger to doing kind things for older people. As head of her youth group at the Calvary Baptist Church she was active in helping to hold services at several homes in the Summitville area.

Area Men In Vietnam Conflict

By LIDA SMITH

A former East Liverpool High School football player stationed about 20 miles from the Vietnam Demilitarized Zone is involved in a game "for keeps" with the Viet Cong.

Marine Cpl. R. Scott Musuraca, 22-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Musuraca of 2601 St. Clair Ave., is a weather observer stationed with an artillery battalion near the border that divides the small country.

Musuraca, who sends up daily meteorological balloons and charts the weather, once spent five days with a group of Vietnamese soldiers.

"We went about 20 miles south of here to a town called Phu Loc to act as a liaison for our convoys to Da Nang. Phu Loc is the only area of about 2,000 meters that American artillery can't hit. We have converage on everything from the "zone" to below Da Nang except in that area."

"Anyway, I went down with two radio operators and stayed right with the people and even ate with them at times. It was definitely decent and I'm looking forward to going down again."

Musuraca did indeed visit that camp again and learned to overcome a dislike for rice —a food he would rarely eat at home, but found himself eating as often as three times a day in Vietnam. He has even become proficient at using chopsticks to eat the rice.

HE WROTE home that it "wasn't polite" to ask WHAT he was eating when a guest of the people — and often as not he wouldn't really want to know. The variety of meat runs from dog meat and snake to an occasional rodent. At least, that's what the people "volunteered" to say about their diet.

"It's a little closer to the heart of things, but I felt like I was accomplishing something," he said of his missions

CPL. SCOTT MUSURACA

o Phu Loc and the other areas.

"An ARVN patrol — abbreviation for the Army of the Republic of Vietnam—captured a Viet Cong one night while we were there. He had about 19,000 piasters in his wallet — more than $150 in United States currency—which is quite a bit for a raggedy "gook".

The husky Marine also commented on other happenings in the war zone: "There has been quite a lot of activity going on with our forward elements. So far we have escaped attack, but I don't envy those people north of us."

His work keeps him busy, but he is never so preoccupied that he can forget that just miles away — far less than the distance from East Liverpool to Pittsburgh — Viet Cong are planning attacks and laying in wait.

"I ALSO STAND guard every few days. It would be the most boring thing of all if it weren't so scarey. Imagine sitting just 20 yards from the barbed wire perimeter all night with one other man asleep inside a make - shift sandbag shelter. I can hear all sorts of weird noises."

After Musuraca arrived at Da Nang and later was flown to a location at Hue, he was impressed by the countryside . . ."My first view was a very pretty one with the clouds rolling down off the mountains and surrounding the harbor."

He described his initial weeks of adjusting to the new climate: "We live in tents and sleep on cots. It was pretty nice the first two days. The sun was out and it was really beautiful, but then the sun disappeared and the rains came. We haven't even seen the sun since last Friday (nearly a week before)."

"It doesn't really rain hard, just a steady drizzle with the wind blowing it back in your face. I've got a great cold from being on guard the other night, and from spending all afternoon yesterday providing security for a mine sweeping team."

"One of our trucks hit a mine while outside the perimeter and we had to go out and bring it back in. The vehicle was a small truck and in pretty bad shape. There were four people in it, but luckily, no one was killed — two of the men were hurt rather badly."

"WE FOUND five other mines and bobby traps — all of which we destroyed. They were all U.S. made artillery rounds which hadn't exploded when fired."

So goes a day in the life of this U.S. Marine, who is constantly reading and writing home for more books. His mother said, "Scott always read a lot at home and is continually asking us to send more books of all kinds.

Musuraca plans to attend college when he returns home, but he has not made definite decisions on his studies.

Graduated from East Liverpool High School in 1963, he enlisted in the Marine Corps. He will have been in the service two years in September. He is engaged to Miss Patty Turner, a nurse at City Hospital.

Musuraca's father is employed in the production control department at the Mid-Steel Co. Scott has two brothers — Air Force Lt. Nick Musuraca stationed at the Clark Air Force Base in the Philippine Islands, with whom Scott plans to spend his rest leave this month and Jim Musuraca, a sophomore at East Liverpool High School— and three sisters — Mrs. Donald (Beth) Manuel, whose husband, Spec. 5 Donald Manuel, is stationed in Germany, and Peggy Musuraca, 12, and Maria Musuraca, nearly 11.

BARBS

By Walter C. Parkes

Bragging that you never tire of work can make you tiresome to your friends.

If you think the clinging-vine type of gal has disappeared, you just haven't noticed the motorcycles roaring around town.

You are middle - aged when jokes that start "You are middle - aged . . ." hit home.

Complaints about mail deliveries flood Washington. Even so, it's hard to beat a five-cent stamp as a bargain in service charges.

You And The Law

"By golly," George told a friend, "I've got so many credit cards now I don't have to use cash."

"Credit cards are fine," the friend replied, "but I certainly don't carry any more than I need and I am darned careful where I use them and that I get them back."

"Well," George said, "these companies keep sending me the cards, so I use them. I don't know what to do with them, anyway."

"IF YOU DON'T want them, get rid of them," the friend replied. "No law says you have to accept a credit card. Personally, I either destroy the card and notify the company that sent it to me what I've done, or chop the thing into little pieces and send it back to them, telling them I do not wish a credit account with their firm. Just for the heck of it, I usually keep one or two bits of the card I cut up so that no one could reconstruct it."

"Well, I'm not worried," George replied. "Look here—here are all my cards. . . Oh, my gosh, the one from Smedlies Department Store is missing."

"Better notify the store real quick, George. Since you're a bachelor, I know your wife doesn't have it, like mine would," the friend replied.

DEPENDING on the situation, and on the terms he agreed to when he accepted the card, George might be liable for any purchases made with his lost credit card.

Under ordinary circumstances, he is not required to pay for goods if the card has been stolen and used without the holder's knowledge. But, once the owner discovers the card is gone, he assumes liability unless he is reasonably prompt in notifying the store.

Ohio law discourages a finder from using the credit card of another. The penalties for such misuse call for imprisonment from one to seven years if the purchase is $60 or more, or $300 fine or 90 days in jail or both, if the purchase is less than $60.

Cocoanut Delight

1 cup cocoanut
1 cup miniature marshmallows
1 cup sour cream
1 cup mandarin oranges
1 cup pineapple chunks

Drain the fruit, mix with the other ingredients, place in serving dish and refrigerate. It's more flavorable if made a day ahead.

Black Raspberry Dessert

1 pkg. black raspberry gelatin
1 can black raspberries
1 small can crushed pineapple
1 pkg. dream whip

Make up gelatin and let set. Fold in the drained fruit and prepared dream whip and refrigerate.

A. — By adding a spoonful of lemon oil or any furniture oil to the rinse water when you wash these cloths.

Out Of The Air

By HAL HUMPHREY

Rumor-Mongers Pursue Neville

Ugly rumors always are being circulated about our show biz stars, and, needless to say, most of them are started by jealous little people trying to help their own image by besmirching someone else's.

Hal Humphrey

To give you an idea, one of these lowlifers (we won't even mention his name) has been going around saying that Neville Brand, late of the "Laredo" series, is a reformed man. If you believed this rumormonger, the old hard-living, boisterous Neville is now as peaceful and shy as a shorn lamb.

-:-

ANY FEARS I had that Neville may have slipped into the straight and narrow were quickly dispelled when I personally dropped in on him at the "Daniel Boone" set to investigate. He was acting up a storm as a deranged outcast named Tanner, who had been befriended by Dan'l and his son, Israel, but pursued by the "good people of Boonesborough," who feared Tanner because he warn't like other folk.

For Neville, such a role is typical type-casting. He's never been like most other folk, and the Neville Brand you see on the TV and movie screen is pretty much the same as the real-life Neville, a fact which greatly disturbed the delicate balance of buttoned-down conformity at Universal City Studios, where Neville formerly was employed as Reese Bennett in the "Laredo" TV series.

"Yeah, Universal suspended me, and I didn't do the last four or five 'Laredos'," Neville admitted, as we exploded those vile rumors about him over a double Bloody Mary. "You can't shoot an hour show in five days, like they were doing most of the time, without losing something.

I STARTED giving them a bad time because there were some scenes I just wouldn't do. One week I stayed locked in my dressing room the whole week until they rewrote the script."

When the dark-suited keepers of the norm at Universal called to complain to Neville's agent, he had a ready answer for them.

"You hired him to play Reese Bennett, a hard-riding, hard-lovin' character, but then at 7 p.m. you want him to wrap it up and not show a drop of Reese Bennett," the agent, according to Neville, told the Universal brass.

"And he's got a point, hasn't he?" added Neville. "I mean a guy can't be both of those guys without bein' some kind of a skeez-o-phrenic. Right?"

HE IS absolutely right, of course. When a man has all of the boundless energies and talents possessed by Neville, there is no easy way to turn them on and off at will.

In the palmier days, before the bookkeepers, bankers and punch cards were moved into the studios, the stars didn't have to get "A" in deportment to prove their worth. If they had, we probably wouldn't have heard of half of them, because they'd have been fired before they got their names in lights.

The "Daniel Boone" episode which Neville is shooting for next fall's new schedule has a 7½-minute master "take" in it which attests to the fact that his acting ability has not deteriorated, despite two seasons of confinement at Universal in next season).

I COULD WORK for this Boone company forever," said Neville. "There's a whole different philosophy here. They want you to do your best and they help you do it. At Universal you have to fight to get it done well. They're more interested in getting it done fast.

"I'll say this, they don't waste anything over there. Did you know they even package their own peanuts for those tourist tours?"

Anyway, they didn't package Neville. Despite the rumors, he's still the hard-living, lovable cuss he always was, I'm happy to report.

East End Driver Will Face Judge For 'Point' Case

A 53-year-old East End man has been ordered to appear before Municipal Judge Samuel M. Chertoff Thursday at 10 a. m. to show cause why his driver's license should not be suspended as an "habitual traffic violator" under Ohio's 12 - point "demerit system."

John E. Caplinger of 718 Central Ave. was summoned after Fred Rice, registrar of the Bureau of Motor Vehicles, certified he has accumulated 12 "points" for two traffic law violations.

The state record shows Caplinger was in the local court April 20 on a charge of driving after his license was revoked. He also was penalized in Marietta Nov. 22, 1966, on a charge of driving after his license had been suspended, the record shows.

It's Caplinger's second appearance before Judge Chertoff in a "point" case. The first occasion was in May 1966, when he was given a six-month suspension. The state law provides a sliding scale of penalties that sets a one-year suspension for a second violation.

On the other side was this message: "Doing fine, am out in the field. What do you think of my writing gear. . . ." and the Albuquerque street address of his parents.

Out Of The Air

By HAL HUMPHREY

Rumor-Mongers Pursue Neville

Ugly rumors always are being circulated about our show biz stars, and, needless to say, most of them are started by jealous little people trying to help their own image by besmirching someone else's.

Hal Humphrey

To give you an idea, one of these lowlifers (we won't even mention his name) has been going around saying that Neville Brand, late of the "Laredo" series, is a reformed man. If you believed this rumormonger, the old hard-living, boisterous Neville is now as peaceful and shy as a shorn lamb.

-:-

ANY FEARS I had that Neville may have slipped into the straight and narrow were quickly dispelled when I personally dropped in on him at the "Daniel Boone" set to investigate. He was acting up a storm as a deranged outcast named Tanner, who had been befriended by Dan'l and his son, Israel, but pursued by the "good people of Boonesborough," who feared Tanner because he warn't like other folk.

For Neville, such a role is typical type-casting. He's never been like most other folk, and the Neville Brand you see on the TV and movie screen is pretty much the same as the real-life Neville, a fact which greatly disturbed the delicate balance of buttoned-down conformity at Universal City Studios, where Neville formerly was employed as Reese Bennett in the "Laredo" TV series.

"Yeah, Universal suspended me, and I didn't do the last four or five 'Laredos'," Neville admitted, as we exploded those vile rumors about him over a double Bloody Mary. "You can't shoot an hour show in five days, like they were doing most of the time, without losing something.

I STARTED giving them a bad time because there were some scenes I just wouldn't do. One week I stayed locked in my dressing room the whole week until they rewrote the script."

When the dark-suited keepers of the norm at Universal called to complain to Neville's agent, he had a ready answer for them.

"You hired him to play Reese Bennett, a hard-riding, hard-lovin' character, but then at 7 p.m. you want him to wrap it up and not show a drop of Reese Bennett," the agent, according to Neville, told the Universal brass.

"And he's got a point, hasn't he?" added Neville. "I mean a guy can't be both of those guys without bein' some kind of a skeez-o-phrenic. Right?"

HE IS absolutely right, of course. When a man has all of the boundless energies and talents possessed by Neville, there is no easy way to turn them on and off at will.

In the palmier days, before the bookkeepers, bankers and punch cards were moved into the studios, the stars didn't have to get "A" in deportment to prove their worth. If they had, we probably wouldn't have heard of half of them, because they'd have been fired before they got their names in lights.

The "Daniel Boone" episode which Neville is shooting for next fall's new schedule has a 7½-minute master "take" in it which attests to the fact that his acting ability has not deteriorated, despite two seasons of confinement at Universal in next season).

I COULD WORK for this Boone company forever," said Neville. "There's a whole different philosophy here. They want you to do your best and they help you do it. At Universal you have to fight to get it done well. They're more interested in getting it done fast.

"I'll say this, they don't waste anything over there. Did you know they even package their own peanuts for those tourist tours?"

Anyway, they didn't package Neville. Despite the rumors, he's still the hard-living, lovable cuss he always was, I'm happy to report.

East End Driver Will Face Judge For 'Point' Case

A 53-year-old East End man has been ordered to appear before Municipal Judge Samuel M. Chertoff Thursday at 10 a. m. to show cause why his driver's license should not be suspended as an "habitual traffic violator" under Ohio's 12 - point "demerit system."

John E. Caplinger of 718 Central Ave. was summoned after Fred Rice, registrar of the Bureau of Motor Vehicles, certified he has accumulated 12 "points" for two traffic law violations.

The state record shows Caplinger was in the local court April 20 on a charge of driving after his license was revoked. He also was penalized in Marietta Nov. 22, 1966, on a charge of driving after his license had been suspended, the record shows.

It's Caplinger's second appearance before Judge Chertoff in a "point" case. The first occasion was in May 1966, when he was given a six-month suspension. The state law provides a sliding scale of penalties that sets a one-year suspension for a second violation.

C-Rations Box Top Used As Writing Gear

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (AP) — A C-rations box top, turned postcard, was received recently by an Albuquerque family from their son who is in Vietnam.

On one side of the box top received by Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Salazar was written: "Meal, Combat, Individual, Ham and Eggs, Chopped, B-3 unit."

On the other side was this message: "Doing fine, am out in the field. What do you think of my writing gear. . . ." and the Albuquerque street address of his parents.

He is married and has three children, a daughter and two sons. The sons both work at Crucible, William R. Murphy of Ohioville Borough in the Electric Furnace Department and James Murphy III of Midland in bar-finishing-east.

Murphy is a member of Midland American Legion Post 481 and the Monaca Turners and is a former clerk of the Election Board, First Precinct, serving approximately 15 years.

Bucs Come From Behind, Trip LA; Reds Win In 11

Pinson's 4th Hit Gives Cincy Nod

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Lightning struck Atlanta's Jay Ritchie the second time around and although he had to wait awhile for the thunderclap, Cincinnati Manager Dave Bristol isn't complaining.

Ritchie fought his way out of a bases-loaded, none out jam, leaving the Reds' winning run stranded on third base in the ninth inning Friday night, but when he climbed out on the limb again in the 11th, Vada Pinson didn't let him off.

Pinson's fourth hit of the night drove in Tommy Helms with the winning run and lifted the first place Reds to a 5-4 comeback victory over the slumping Braves.

In other National League games, St. Louis edged Chicago 2-1, Philadelphia topped Houston 5-3, and Pittsburgh rapped Los Angeles 5-3. New York's game at San Francisco was postponed by rain.

In the American League, California shut out Minnesota 2-0, Baltimore trounced Washington 12-0, Boston shaded Cleveland 2-1, Detroit belted New York 9-5 and Kansas City topped Chicago 6-4 in 13 innings.

The Braves were leading 4-3 on Hank Aaron's two-run homer which erased a 3-2 Cincinnati edge in the ninth. But the Reds struck back quickly. Tony Perez jolted Pat Jarvis with a leadoff double. Deron Johnson's triple tied the score and put the winning run on third with none out.

Tommy Helms was purposely walked and then Ritchie came on to walk Art Shamsky intentionally. That set up a force play at any base, but Ritchie didn't need one. He struck out Leo Cardenas and Don Pavletich and then got Floyd Robinson on a pop fly, stranding the runners.

It remained 4-4 until the 11th when Helms opened with a single and one out later, moved to third on Cardenas' hit. Pavletich walked, loading the bases.

Joe Torre had three hits for the Braves and drove in Atlanta's first two runs.

Lou Brock socked a two-run homer and Steve Carlton pitched a three-hitter as the Cardinals whipped Chicago.

Farrell allowed three hits and one run but shut off a Houston rally in the sixth when he relieved Ellsworth. The Phillies jumped in front with two runs in each of the first two innings against loser Chris Zachary, 0-6.

Ex-Dodger Maury Wills drove in Pittsburgh's tie-breaking run with a seventh inning triple as the Pirates stopped the Dodgers.

Wills, playing in Los Angeles for the first time since being traded, had two hits and scored twice for the Pirates.

Phoebus Hurls 3rd Straight Shutout For Birds

Robinson Drives Home Five Runs

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Baltimore rookie Tom Phoebus insists his name is pronounced Fee-bus. Oriole fans are equally sure it should be Phenom.

The 25-year-old right-hander who had a brief stint with the Orioles last season, added fuel to the fans' argument Friday night with his third consecutive shutout, a 12-0 blanking of Washington.

That pushed his season record to 4-1 and gave him five shut-outs in six major league career victories — he was 2-1 last season.

Detroit clubbed New York 9-5 and took over first place in the American League when Kansas City outlasted Chicago 6-4 in 13 innings. Boston shaded Cleveland 2-1 and California took Minnesota 2-0 in the other games, all at night.

In the National League, also all at night, St. Louis blanked Chicago 2-0, Philadelphia beat Houston 5-3, Cincinnati nipped Atlanta 5-4 in 11 innings and Pittsburgh topped Los Angeles 5-3. New York at San Francisco was rained out.

"I'm pitching better now that I'm in the regular rotation," Phoebus said after his shutout of the Senators. "But I had some troubles. I was in the groove, then out of it.

"There's no real explanation for it — I pitch better when I don't have so much rest, when we don't have so many days off."

He struck out five, walked seven, gave up first hits and had base runners in every inning. But he left 10 of them stranded.

Frank Robinson gave him plenty of support, driving in five runs on a homer, his 15th, and a double. Andy Etchebarren also had a homer in the 14-hit Oriole attack.

A three-run double by Willie Horton sparked a decisive, six-run sixth inning in Detroit's victory over New York. Al Kaline singled in two other runs while Horton added another double and a single to the Tigers' 13 hit attack. Joe Sparma won his fifth straight but needed relief help from Dave Wickersham.

Pitcher Lew Krausse cracked a bases loaded single with two out in the 13th inning and propelled the A's to their marathon decision over Chicago, dropping the White Sox a full game off the pace.

A throwing error on Krausse's hit let in a third run. Tommy Agee led off the Chicago 13th with a homer and Billy Pierce was called on to save it when Krausse allowed two more singles.

Jim McGlothlin stopped the Twins on five hits, rapped out two of his own and ran his record to 5-1 in the Angel's victory over Minnesota. McGlothlin started the Angels' winning burst with a single in the fifth. Jose Cardenal also singled, and both rode home on Paul Schaal's double.

Jim Lonborg had a no-hitter going for 7 1-3 innings and finished with a three-hitter in leading Boston past Cleveland. His seven-strikeout performance pushed his record to 7-1. Carl Yastrzemski's 11th homer, a two-run shot, was all the offensive support he needed.

Ryun Has Second Fastest Mile Run

LOS ANGELES (AP)— Kansas' fabulous Jim Ryun ran the second fastest mile in history—3:53.2—but the personable young sophomore said Saturday he is still "experimenting."

Ryun, who of course holds the first fastest time, the world record 3:51.3, turned in his brilliant performance in the Coliseum-Compton Invitational Friday night before 22,705.

Earlier Hines won the 100 meters in 10.2. His double won him Athlete of the Meet honors.

"I'm quite satisfied with the race, especially the time," said Ryun. "But I feel I am working on a better over-all season schedule this year. In other words, my goal is to hit a peak later in the season."

Ryun will run at Albuquerque, N.M., next week in the U. S. Track and Field Federation meet.

"This was sort of an experimental race," he continued. "I've been doubling up practically all season so I didn't know what I could do in a single race."

"This was my slowest finish all year," Hines said, adding he felt he beat Smith on the turn. He said he thinks he can run 20 flat or under before the season is over.

Was Important To Wills To Be With Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Maury Wills says that given a second chance, he would never provoke the Los Angeles Dodgers into trading him to Pittsburgh.

Wills told about wanting to be back with the Dodgers after he celebrated his return to Los Angeles Friday night by hitting a tie-breaking triple to lead the Pirates to a 5-3 victory.

"Being a Dodger was the most important thing in the world to me," he said.

Wills became persona non grata with the Dodgers last fall when he jumped the club on a barnstorming tour of Japan after being refused permission to come home by club owner Walter O'Malley.

"If I had it to do all over again," Wills said, "I wouldn't leave Japan.

"But I also wish I hadn't gone to Japan in the first place. The trip was supposed to have been voluntary. But Koufax and Drysdale weren't going, and I felt that, as captain of the team, I should go.

Wills said he had been thinking for three days about appearing here for the first time as a rival player. A crowd of 35,540, third largest of the year, turned out to Dodger Stadium for the event.

Maury received a cheering ovation when the Lineups were announced and was greeted enthusiastically by the Dodger partisans each time he came to bat.

"I think most of them wanted me to do well," Wills said, after hitting a single and triple and playing the key role in both Pittsburgh rallies.

"I was hoping I would have a chance to steal a base — I felt the fans came to see me run."

Wills said it has been hard for him to disassociate himself from the Dodgers.

He told about being in a St. Louis hotel with the Pirates this spring and phoning the hotel operator. "When she answered, I said, 'Hello, this is Maury Wills of the Dodgers."

Dodger catcher John Roseboro said: "We miss Maury like you miss a breath of air."

And first baseman Wes Parker echoed: "I've said all spring that we would miss Maury more than Sandy Koufax. Maury is not only a great ballplayer, but he was an inspiration to me and most of the other players on the team."

Ussery To Gamble With Belmont Ride

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Bobby Ussery chose to gamble today in the 99th running of the Belmont Stakes at Aqueduct.

The 32-year-old Vian, Okla., native could have sat out the 1 1-2-mile third leg of the Triple Crown and probably made money. Instead, the popular, hard riding jockey chose to take his chances on Patrice Jacobs' Reason to Hail in the field of 10 headed by Preakness winner Damascus and Kentucky Derby hero Proud Clarion.

Post time is 5:30 p.m. EDT with television (CBS) from 5-5:45 p.m.

Ussery rode Proud Clarion to surprise victory in the Derby after getting the mount only 48 hours before the run for the roses at Churchill Downs. He had not much more than dismounted when John Galbreath, owner of Proud Clarion, said Ussery would be the colt's rider in the remainder of the Triple Crown events. He finished third in the Preakness, after apparently lagging a little too far back in the early going with Proud Clarion.

However, within a few days Braulio Baeza, whose contract with Galbreath expired April 30, signed another contract and the owner immediately announced that the poker faced Panamanian would be on Proud Clarion in the Belmont. Baeza's mounts won nearly $3 million last year compared to Ussery's $1.5 million.

But Galbreath kept his word with Ussery. He promised 10 per cent of whatever Proud Clarion won in the Belmont if he did not have a mount. However, trainer Hirsch Jacobs, a frequent user of Ussery over the past years, lost no time asking him to ride his daughter's horse.

The going rate for a jockey is 10 per cent of whatever the horse wins. With 10 starters first place will be $105,950 of the gross purse of $149,700. Second place will be worth $25,000, third $12,500 and fourth $6,250.

Bill Shoemaker, who'll be astride Mrs. Edith Bancroft's Damascus, has won the classic three times, just half as many as won by Jimmy McLaughlin of the last century and the incomparable Eddie Arcaro. The great Earl Sande won the race five times.

Shoemaker, who will be after his second Aqueduct stakes in six days after winning the Juvenile on Monday with Kaskaskia, won the 1957 Belmont with Gallant Man, the 1959 running with Sword Dancer, sire of Damascus, and the 1962 renewal with Jaipur.

Johnny Sellers is the only other rider in today's race with a previous Belmont victory to his credit. The lanky Sellers won with Hail to All in 1965. He rides Canadian-owned Cool Reception.

Home Run Derby Held In Pony League Games

Home runs were the order of the day in the Pony League. Two towering home runs and a pair of doubles by Deem came in a losing cause as Burbick's pounded Sevy's Drugs, 12-7 in one of two contests.

Burbick's jumped off with five runs in the first inning when John Lockhart and Robinson hit back-to-back home runs in the opening frame.

Aaron was the winning pitcher and Deem was checked with the loss.

In the same game, Watson made a fine defensive play catching a fly ball in centerfield for Sevy's while Golden who drove in three runs, turned in two fine stops at third base for Burbick's.

Woodbine sparked by a grand slam pinch home run by Tuky Taylor and a three run roundtripper by Fred Henderson scored a 14-5 victory over Litten's. A seven-run fourth inning gave Woodbine the nod as Payne the winning hurler allowed only four hits.

The victory was the third straight win for Woodbine. Mike Horoszko homered and doubled for the losers. Calhoun was the losing hurler.

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Lightning struck Atlanta's Jay Ritchie the second time around and although he had to wait awhile for the thunderclap, Cincinnati Manager Dave Bristol isn't complaining.

Ritchie fought his way out of a bases-loaded, none out jam, leaving the Reds' winning run stranded on third base in the ninth inning Friday night, but when he climbed out on the limb again in the 11th, Vada Pinson didn't let him off.

Pinson's fourth hit of the night drove in Tommy Helms with the winning run and lifted the first place Reds to a 5-4 comeback victory over the slumping Braves.

In other National League games, St. Louis edged Chicago 2-1, Philadelphia topped Houston 5-3, and Pittsburgh rapped Los Angeles 5-3. New York's game at San Francisco was postponed by rain.

In the American League, California shut out Minnesota 2-0, Baltimore trounced Washington 12-0, Boston shaded Cleveland 2-1, Detroit belted New York 9-5 and Kansas City topped Chicago 6-4 in 13 innings.

The Braves were leading 4-3 on Hank Aaron's two-run homer which erased a 3-2 Cincinnati edge in the ninth. But the Reds struck back quickly. Tony Perez jolted Pat Jarvis with a leadoff double. Deron Johnson's triple tied the score and put the winning run on third with none out.

Tommy Helms was purposely walked and then Ritchie came on to walk Art Shamsky intentionally. That set up a force play at any base, but Ritchie didn't need one. He struck out Leo Cardenas and Don Pavletich and then got Floyd Robinson on a pop fly, stranding the runners.

It remained 4-4 until the 11th when Helms opened with a single and one out later, moved to third on Cardenas' hit. Pavletich walked, loading the bases.

Joe Torre had three hits for the Braves and drove in Atlanta's first two runs.

Lou Brock socked a two-run homer and Steve Carlton pitched a three-hitter as the Cardinals whipped Chicago.

Carlton didn't allow a hit until Don Kessinger got an infield single with two out in the sixth.

Farrell allowed three hits and one run but shut off a Houston rally in the sixth when he relieved Ellsworth. The Phillies jumped in front with two runs in each of the first two innings against loser Chris Zachary, 0-6.

Ex-Dodger Maury Wills drove in Pittsburgh's tie-breaking run with a seventh inning triple as the Pirates stopped the Dodgers.

Wills, playing in Los Angeles for the first time since being traded, had two hits and scored twice for the Pirates.

Phoebus Hurls 3rd Straight Shutout For Birds

Robinson Drives Home Five Runs

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Baltimore rookie Tom Phoebus insists his name is pronounced Fee-bus. Oriole fans are equally sure it should be Phenom.

The 25-year-old right-hander who had a brief stint with the Orioles last season, added fuel to the fans' argument Friday night with his third consecutive shutout, a 12-0 blanking of Washington.

That pushed his season record to 4-1 and gave him five shut-outs in six major league career victories — he was 2-1 last season.

Detroit clubbed New York 9-5 and took over first place in the American League when Kansas City outlasted Chicago 6-4 in 13 innings. Boston shaded Cleveland 2-1 and California took Minnesota 2-0 in the other games, all at night.

In the National League, also all at night, St. Louis blanked Chicago 2-0, Philadelphia beat Houston 5-3, Cincinnati nipped Atlanta 5-4 in 11 innings and Pittsburgh topped Los Angeles 5-3. New York at San Francisco was rained out.

"I'm pitching better now that I'm in the regular rotation," Phoebus said after his shutout of the Senators. "But I had some troubles. I was in the groove, then out of it.

"There's no real explanation for it — I pitch better when I don't have so much rest, when we don't have so many days off."

He struck out five, walked seven, gave up first hits and had base runners in every inning. But he left 10 of them stranded.

Frank Robinson gave him plenty of support, driving in five runs on a homer, his 15th, and a double. Andy Etchebarren also had a homer in the 14-hit Oriole attack.

A three-run double by Willie Horton sparked a decisive, six-run sixth inning in Detroit's victory over New York. Al Kaline singled in two other runs while Horton added another double and a single to the Tigers' 13 hit attack. Joe Sparma won his fifth straight but needed relief help from Dave Wickersham.

Pitcher Lew Krausse cracked a bases loaded single with two out in the 13th inning and propelled the A's to their marathon decision over Chicago, dropping the White Sox a full game off the pace.

A throwing error on Krausse's hit let in a third run. Tommy Agee led off the Chicago 13th with a homer and Billy Pierce was called on to save it when Krausse allowed two more singles.

Jim McGlothlin stopped the Twins on five hits, rapped out two of his own and ran his record to 5-1 in the Angel's victory over Minnesota. McGlothlin started the Angels' winning burst with a single in the fifth. Jose Cardenal also singled, and both rode home on Paul Schaal's double.

Jim Lonborg had a no-hitter going for 7 1-3 innings and finished with a three-hitter in leading Boston past Cleveland. His seven-strikeout performance pushed his record to 7-1. Carl Yastrzemski's 11th homer, a two-run shot, was all the offensive support he needed.

Ryun Has Second Fastest Mile Run

LOS ANGELES (AP)— Kansas' fabulous Jim Ryun ran the second fastest mile in history—3:53.2—but the personable young sophomore said Saturday he is still "experimenting."

Ryun, who of course holds the first fastest time, the world record 3:51.3, turned in his brilliant performance in the Coliseum-Compton Invitational Friday night before 22,705.

The mile shared honors with several other events.

Australia's distance champion, Ron Clarke, eased up in the final strides, took the 5,000 meters in 13:39.8 which hardly challenged his world record 13:16.6.

Smith's record is 20 flat.

Earlier Hines won the 100 meters in 10.2. His double won him Athlete of the Meet honors.

"I'm quite satisfied with the race, especially the time," said Ryun. "But I feel I am working on a better over-all season schedule this year. In other words, my goal is to hit a peak later in the season."

Ryun will run at Albuquerque, N.M., next week in the U. S. Track and Field Federation meet.

"This was sort of an experimental race," he continued. "I've been doubling up practically all season so I didn't know what I could do in a single race."

"This was my slowest finish all year," Hines said, adding he felt he beat Smith on the turn. He said he thinks he can run 20 flat or under before the season is over.

Was Important To Wills To Be With Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Maury Wills says that given a second chance, he would never provoke the Los Angeles Dodgers into trading him to Pittsburgh.

Wills told about wanting to be back with the Dodgers after he celebrated his return to Los Angeles Friday night by hitting a tie-breaking triple to lead the Pirates to a 5-3 victory.

"Being a Dodger was the most important thing in the world to me," he said.

Wills became persona non grata with the Dodgers last fall when he jumped the club on a barnstorming tour of Japan after being refused permission to come home by club owner Walter O'Malley.

"If I had it to do all over again," Wills said, "I wouldn't leave Japan.

"But I also wish I hadn't gone to Japan in the first place. The trip was supposed to have been voluntary. But Koufax and Drysdale weren't going, and I felt that, as captain of the team, I should go.

Wills said he had been thinking for three days about appearing here for the first time as a rival player. A crowd of 35,540, third largest of the year, turned out to Dodger Stadium for the event.

Maury received a cheering ovation when the Lineups were announced and was greeted enthusiastically by the Dodger partisans each time he came to bat.

"I think most of them wanted me to do well," Wills said, after hitting a single and triple and playing the key role in both Pittsburgh rallies.

"I was hoping I would have a chance to steal a base — I felt the fans came to see me run."

Wills said it has been hard for him to disassociate himself from the Dodgers.

He told about being in a St. Louis hotel with the Pirates this spring and phoning the hotel operator. "When she answered, I said, 'Hello, this is Maury Wills of the Dodgers."

Dodger catcher John Roseboro said: "We miss Maury like you miss a breath of air."

And first baseman Wes Parker echoed: "I've said all spring that we would miss Maury more than Sandy Koufax. Maury is not only a great ballplayer, but he was an inspiration to me and most of the other players on the team."

Ussery To Gamble With Belmont Ride

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Bobby Ussery chose to gamble today in the 99th running of the Belmont Stakes at Aqueduct.

The 32-year-old Vian, Okla., native could have sat out the 1 1-2-mile third leg of the Triple Crown and probably made money. Instead, the popular, hard riding jockey chose to take his chances on Patrice Jacobs' Reason to Hail in the field of 10 headed by Preakness winner Damascus and Kentucky Derby hero Proud Clarion.

Stanton Coach, Oak Glen Wrestlers To Be Honored

Glenn Trout, who coached Stanton Local to an undefeated football season last fall and the No. 4 ranking among Class A teams in the final post-season grid poll, will be honored as one of the Men of the Year at the first Charity Awards Banquet of the Upper Ohio Valley Dapper Dan Club Sunday, June 11 at 6 p.m. at the Millsop Community Center in Weirton.

Trout, whose Stanton Local team posted a perfect 9-0 record, will be given a large silver bowl, along with Abe Bryan, head football coach at Steubenville Big Red, as "Men of the Year." Bryan's Big Red finished in the No. 4 position among Class AA teams in Ohio with a 9-1 record.

The list also includes Bob Jeter of Weirton, star defensive back of the Green Bay Packers; Gene Trosh of Weirton and the University of Miami, who was the number one draft pick of the Kansas City Chiefs, Bill Tucker of Weirton and Tennessee A&I, a draft choice of the San Francisco 49ers, and Harry Wilson of Steubenville and the University of Nebraska, a top draft choice of the Philadelphia Eagles.

—:—

Other athletes to be honored are: Mike Palmer and Dwight Sims of Steubenville Big Red; Ed Narewski of Steubenville Catholic Central; Tom Hogan of Wheeling Central; Tim Anderson of Follansbee; Matteo Magnone and Dwight (Skip) Motley of Weir High; Greg Church and Bill Kennedy of Warwood; Paul Van Dyke of Wellsburg; Les Zapor of Weirton Madonna; Mike Sherwood of Bellaire; Charles Schwertfeger of Bethany High and Dick Symons of Toronto.

Hinkle, who is a member of the National Professional Football Hall of Fame in Canton for his play with the Green Bay Packers, will be toastmaster for the dinner.

One of the highlights of the affair will be the attendance of Al Abrams, sports editor of the Pittsburgh Post Gazette and the founder of Dapper Dan. Abrams' huge Dapper Dan dinners in Pittsburgh, honoring the outstanding performers in the sports world, are widely known and draw some 2,000 each year.

ABRAMS has notified the co-chairmen that he will bring Bill Nelson and Jim Bradshaw, star players with the Pittsburgh Steelers, as well as "Bones" Taylor, assistant coach with the Steelers and Bob Friend, former star pitcher with the Pittsburgh Pirates. Cassius Clay May Change Mind In Draft

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cassius Clay and several other Negroes prominent in sports are scheduled to be in Cleveland Sunday amid speculation that Clay may be considering changing his mind on being drafted in the Army.

Clay refused to be drafted last month and was stripped of his heavyweight boxing title.

Jim Brown, who has been trying to persuade Clay — or Muhammad Ali as the boxer prefers to be known — to make the move, also is to be in the huddle.

Brown, former Cleveland Browns fullback, is returning from England where he has been working on a movie.

The meeting is to be held at the Negro Industrial and Economic Union headquarters. Brown is executive director and president of the union.

A spokesman for the organization who announced the meeting said that others scheduled to attend include Bill Russell, coach of the Boston Celtics; Bobby Mitchell of the Washington Redskins; Lew Alcindor, star of the UCLA basketball team; John Wooten, a guard for the Cleveland Browns, and Gale Sayers of the Chicago Bears.

All America Final Set In British Golf

By RONALD THOMSON

FORMBY, England (AP) — Bob Dickson shook hands with Ron Cerrudo today and went into the all-America final of the British Amateur golf championships saying: "come out fighting, boy."

"You can bet on that," said Cerrudo. "And don't forget our last match together."

Dickson, 23-year-old Oklahoma State University graduate from Muskogee, was a slight favorite to defeat Cerrudo in the first all-American final in the British Amateur since 1959.

Three years ago Cerrudo defeated Dickson, rated by most experts as the finest golfer in this year's British championship, 2 and 1, in a Trans-Mississippi tournament at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Both American Walker Cup players have been well under par throughout seven rounds over Formby's 6,854-yard, par 72 course.

"I'm putting well above my normal standard," Dickson said. "I'm finding no trouble in sinking the long ones. It's those little easy ones that are difficult."

Bosox Hurler Has No-Hitter For 7 Frames

CLEVELAND (AP) — Jim Lonborg, who came within five outs of pitching a no-hit game against the Cleveland Indians Friday night, said he was happy "about our winning, but sort of depressed that I didn't get the no-hitter."

"It's the closest I've ever come," said the 24-year-old Boston right-hander after winning a 2-1 decision to give him a 7-1 record for the season.

"After I struck out the side in the seventh, I figured I could get it. In fact, I went out there in the eighth aiming at striking out the next six men."

He had a total of seven strikeouts in the game and finished with a three-hitter.

Carl Yastrzemski's 11th homer of the season following a single by Mike Andrews in the sixth provided the Red Sox run.

"It was a pretty good pitch to Sims," Lonborg said. "It was a curve ball and pretty much where I wanted to put it."

Lonborg told why he wanted a no-hitter so much.

"I guess I can do it by winning 20 games, but I still want a no-hitter."

Keyser Captures Baseball Crown

PARKERSBURG (AP)—"After 24 years, it is quite a thrill, reflected Keyser baseball coach Fred "Tack" Clark after his team whipped East Bank 8-0 Friday night for the West Virginia high school baseball championship.

"This is my 24th year at Keyser," he added, "and this was only the second time we've been in the state tourney."

The Golden Tornadoes made it to the playoff in 1961, but were eliminated in the semi - final round.

Hill Carries 4-Stroke Lead After 3 Rounds

By BOB GILBERT
Associated Press Sports Writer

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Dave Hill would like nothing better than to be a copycat—to match Dave Stockton's pattern of success two weeks ago—and he is halfway there.

Hill, a powerful tee shot artist from Jackson, Mich., carried a four-stroke lead into today's third round of the $100,000 Memphis Open Golf Tournament. He had a 9-under-par 131.

That was the margin Stockton held in the same round when he won the Colonial Invitation at Fort Worth, Tex. In fact, Hill has shot a 65-66 here as did Stockton at Fort Worth, Tex. The weather is even similar.

"Dave had a super game out there, and so far in this tournament I've played my best golf this year—my best 36 holes since I won the Denver Open in 1961," Hill said.

Challenging Hill as the third round began were three players tied with 5-under-par 135s—Gary Player, Bruce Crampton and Chuck Courtney.

For Player, who returned to the tour recently after six weeks at his ranch in South Africa, the past two weeks have been amazing. He played well in losing a playoff to Miller Barber last week at Oklahoma City, and continued his sharpness here.

"You've got to have a hobby, and my ranch is mine—1,000 acres with cattle, horses and fishing lakes. But it's not very good to lay off that long...playing only three rounds in six weeks. This has amazed me."

Crampton, who left the tour last week to study film and correct his swing, said his 66 Friday probably was his best round in two years.

Seventy-nine players at 145 or under qualified for the final two days—the second largest field on the 1967 tour.

May Good Month For Automakers

DETROIT (AP) — U.S. auto makers, after four months of sales that dismally trailed the 1966 pace, had the best sales month in May in more than a year.

Last month's sales, preliminary reports showed Friday, were a healthy eight per cent — 47,600 cars — above sales in May 1966.

The 823,797 vehicles that rolled out of dealer showrooms in May outnumbered those sold in any month back to March 1966, when customers bought 853,978.

General Motors, with all five of its divisions showing sharp upswings, led the surge with 471,530 vehicles sold, up 18 per cent— 70,041 — from May 1966.

Chrysler sales hit 121,547, up six per cent from May 1966 and American Motors had sales of 22,602, a 5.4 per cent increase.

Only Ford Motor Co., second largest of the U.S. auto builders, had sales still lagging behind last year's May rate. Ford sales of 208,117 were down 16 per cent, or 28,928 cars, compared to May 1966.

Stanton Coach, Oak Glen Wrestlers To Be Honored

Glenn Trout, who coached Stanton Local to an undefeated football season last fall and the No. 4 ranking among Class A teams in the final post-season grid poll, will be honored as one of the Men of the Year at the first Charity Awards Banquet of the Upper Ohio Valley Dapper Dan Club Sunday, June 11 at 6 p.m. at the Millsop Community Center in Weirton.

Trout, whose Stanton Local team posted a perfect 9-0 record, will be given a large silver bowl, along with Abe Bryan, head football coach at Steubenville Big Red, as "Men of the Year." Bryan's Big Red finished in the No. 4 position among Class AA teams in Ohio with a 9-1 record.

THE TWO successful coaches are among 34 athletes and coaches who will be honored at the banquet. Other coaches include: Andy Urbanic, football coach at Wheeling Central, West Virginia Catholic champions; Bob Goin of Bethany College's unbeaten football team; Tommy Ackerman of Bethany College's PAC champion basketball squad; Vince Monseau of Oak Glen's state champion wrestling team; Jim Foti of Warwood High's Class AA state championship basketball team; Larry Sayre of Wellsburg's sectional and regional champion basketballers; Claire Cribbs of Bellaire and Eastern District Coach of the Year in Ohio; Russ Schwertfeger of Bethany High's W. Va. Class A runner-up basketball team and Al Haffner of Scio's unbeaten football team.

AMONG the stellar athletes to be honored will be Ed Crawford, Stanton Local High's all-state lineman and Rick Price, Ralph Louk and Dave Lowther, Oak Glen High's state champion wrestlers.

The list also includes Bob Jeter of Weirton, star defensive back of the Green Bay Packers; Gene Trosh of Weirton and the University of Miami, who was the number one draft pick of the Kansas City Chiefs, Bill Tucker of Weirton and Tennessee A&I, a draft choice of the San Francisco 49ers, and Harry Wilson of Steubenville and the University of Nebraska, a top draft choice of the Philadelphia Eagles.

ONLY those athletes who are seniors and in the opinion of the Dapper Dan selection committee did the most during the 1966-67 school year to publicize the Upper Ohio Valley were eligible for the awards. The awards consist of large bronze engraved plaques.

Other athletes to be honored are: Mike Palmer and Dwight Sims of Steubenville Big Red; Ed Narewski of Steubenville Catholic Central; Tom Hogan of Wheeling Central; Tim Anderson of Follansbee; Matteo Magnone and Dwight (Skip) Motley of Weir High; Greg Church and Bill Kennedy of Warwood; Paul Van Dyke of Wellsburg; Les Zapor of Weirton Madonna; Mike Sherwood of Bellaire; Charles Schwertfeger of Bethany High and Dick Symons of Toronto.

Hinkle, who is a member of the National Professional Football Hall of Fame in Canton for his play with the Green Bay Packers, will be toastmaster for the dinner.

One of the highlights of the affair will be the attendance of Al Abrams, sports editor of the Pittsburgh Post Gazette and the founder of Dapper Dan. Abrams' huge Dapper Dan dinners in Pittsburgh, honoring the outstanding performers in the sports world, are widely known and draw some 2,000 each year.

ABRAMS has notified the co-chairmen that he will bring Bill Nelson and Jim Bradshaw, star players with the Pittsburgh Steelers, as well as "Bones" Taylor, assistant coach with the Steelers and Bob Friend, former star pitcher with the Pittsburgh Pirates. Abrams said there is a possibility he will bring another star professional athlete from the Pittsburgh areas as a "mystery guest."

These guests, along with all the honorees will be available after the banquet for conversation and autographs.

The Upper Ohio Valley Dapper Dan dinner is being patterned after the huge Pittsburgh affair, but on a much smaller scale. Some 500 are expected to turn out for the first dinner.

Over 800 tickets have been mailed to Dapper Dan Club members and the reservations became open to the public last weekend. Reservations are available by contacting Mr. Hinkle in Toronto, Mr. Cox in Weirton or Ray Connelly of Toronto, ticket chairman. The deadline is June 5.

Cassius Clay May Change Mind In Draft

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cassius Clay and several other Negroes prominent in sports are scheduled to be in Cleveland Sunday amid speculation that Clay may be considering changing his mind on being drafted in the Army.

Clay refused to be drafted last month and was stripped of his heavyweight boxing title.

Jim Brown, who has been trying to persuade Clay — or Muhammad Ali as the boxer prefers to be known — to make the move, also is to be in the huddle.

Brown, former Cleveland Browns fullback, is returning from England where he has been working on a movie.

The meeting is to be held at the Negro Industrial and Economic Union headquarters. Brown is executive director and president of the union.

A spokesman for the organization who announced the meeting said that others scheduled to attend include Bill Russell, coach of the Boston Celtics; Bobby Mitchell of the Washington Redskins; Lew Alcindor, star of the UCLA basketball team; John Wooten, a guard for the Cleveland Browns, and Gale Sayers of the Chicago Bears.

All America Final Set In British Golf

By RONALD THOMSON

FORMBY, England (AP) — Bob Dickson shook hands with Ron Cerrudo today and went into the all-America final of the British Amateur golf championships saying: "come out fighting, boy."

"You can bet on that," said Cerrudo. "And don't forget our last match together."

Dickson, 23-year-old Oklahoma State University graduate from Muskogee, was a slight favorite to defeat Cerrudo in the first all-American final in the British Amateur since 1959.

Three years ago Cerrudo defeated Dickson, rated by most experts as the finest golfer in this year's British championship, 2 and 1, in a Trans-Mississippi tournament at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Both American Walker Cup players have been well under par throughout seven rounds over Formby's 6,854-yard, par 72 course.

"I'm putting well above my normal standard," Dickson said. "I'm finding no trouble in sinking the long ones. It's those little easy ones that are difficult."

Both finalists agreed Formby was playing like an American course.

Bosox Hurler Has No-Hitter For 7 Frames

CLEVELAND (AP) — Jim Lonborg, who came within five outs of pitching a no-hit game against the Cleveland Indians Friday night, said he was happy "about our winning, but sort of depressed that I didn't get the no-hitter."

"It's the closest I've ever come," said the 24-year-old Boston right-hander after winning a 2-1 decision to give him a 7-1 record for the season.

"After I struck out the side in the seventh, I figured I could get it. In fact, I went out there in the eighth aiming at striking out the next six men."

He had a total of seven strikeouts in the game and finished with a three-hitter.

Following a walk and a force out, Chuck Hinton delivered a pinch single, scoring Sims. Lonborg then struck out Viv Davalillo to end the inning.

Lee Maye doubled to lead off the bottom of the ninth, but Lonborg retired the next three batters.

Carl Yastrzemski's 11th homer of the season following a single by Mike Andrews in the sixth provided the Red Sox run.

"It was a pretty good pitch to Sims," Lonborg said. "It was a curve ball and pretty much where I wanted to put it."

Lonborg told why he wanted a no-hitter so much.

"I want this to be a real good year," he explained. "To get attention you have to do something like pitching a no-hitter.

"I guess I can do it by winning 20 games, but I still want a no-hitter."

Keyser Captures Baseball Crown

"This is my 24th year at Keyser," he added, "and this was only the second time we've been in the state tourney."

The Golden Tornadoes made it to the playoff in 1961, but were eliminated in the semi - final round.

Hill Carries 4-Stroke Lead After 3 Rounds

By BOB GILBERT
Associated Press Sports Writer

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Dave Hill would like nothing better than to be a copycat—to match Dave Stockton's pattern of success two weeks ago—and he is halfway there.

Hill, a powerful tee shot artist from Jackson, Mich., carried a four-stroke lead into today's third round of the $100,000 Memphis Open Golf Tournament. He had a 9-under-par 131.

That was the margin Stockton held in the same round when he won the Colonial Invitation at Fort Worth, Tex. In fact, Hill has shot a 65-66 here as did Stockton at Fort Worth, Tex. The weather is even similar.

"Dave had a super game out there, and so far in this tournament I've played my best golf this year—my best 36 holes since I won the Denver Open in 1961," Hill said.

Challenging Hill as the third round began were three players tied with 5-under-par 135s—Gary Player, Bruce Crampton and Chuck Courtney.

For Player, who returned to the tour recently after six weeks at his ranch in South Africa, the past two weeks have been amazing. He played well in losing a playoff to Miller Barber last week at Oklahoma City, and continued his sharpness here.

"You've got to have a hobby, and my ranch is mine—1,000 acres with cattle, horses and fishing lakes. But it's not very good to lay off that long...playing only three rounds in six weeks. This has amazed me."

Crampton, who left the tour last week to study film and correct his swing, said his 66 Friday probably was his best round in two years.

Seventy-nine players at 145 or under qualified for the final two days—the second largest field on the 1967 tour.

May Good Month For Automakers

DETROIT (AP) — U.S. auto makers, after four months of sales that dismally trailed the 1966 pace, had the best sales month in May in more than a year.

Last month's sales, preliminary reports showed Friday, were a healthy eight per cent — 47,600 cars — above sales in May 1966.

The 823,797 vehicles that rolled out of dealer showrooms in May outnumbered those sold in any month back to March 1966, when customers bought 553,978.

General Motors, with all five of its divisions showing sharp upswings, led the surge with 471,530 vehicles sold, up 18 per cent— 70,041 — from May 1966.

Chrysler sales hit 121,547, up six per cent from May 1966 and American Motors had sales of 22,602, a 5.4 per cent increase.

Only Ford Motor Co., second largest of the U.S. auto builders, had sales still lagging behind last year's May rate. Ford sales of 208,117 were down 15 per cent, or 28,928 cars, compared to May 1966.

We are looking for a husband and wife team in this area interested in establishing their own business—without financial risk. The husband would retain his present job while the business gets started, and assist his wife in his spare time. Without the need for an office, this is a business a wife can run with just occasional help from her husband. A business that can increase your family income immediately, and earn $10,000 to $15,000 a year or more when developed.
The business? A family-owned distributorship for Vanda Cosmetics Company, an affiliate of Tupperware, a division of the $500 million Rexall Drug and Chemical Company.
WE TRAIN YOU
No business or cosmetics experience is required. We train you. Energy, ambition and willingness to work are the qualities we seek. Our program is complete—to the smallest detail—easy to follow, and provided to you at no cost. We use the most modern training methods and visual aids—and we bring the training to you. Our experienced management counselors will personally work with you to establish your business. Our philosophy is to provide constant personal guidance and assistance as your business grows. There is an opening in this area. If you are anxious to build a profitable business for your family, write today and please include information about both of you. We will send complete details, at no obligation to you, via air mail. Write to Dick Bartlett, Vice President, Vanda Cosmetics Company, Orlando, Florida.

Junior Editors Quiz on SALAMANDERS

QUESTION: How do salamanders and lizards differ?

ANSWER: In a recent article about frogs and toads, we pointed out that both of these were amphibians, animals with soft skins, which usually spend part of their time on land and part in the water. A salamander is another kind of amphibian. It can't hop away from danger the way toads and frogs can. But its very small legs and long tubular body allow it to hide under leaves, stones or fallen trees. Needing moisture, salamanders are usually found near water. Lizards resemble salamanders in shape but are very different. They are reptiles, more advanced animals than the amphibians. Lizzards have five toes on the front foot to the salamander's four. And their bodies are encased in hard scales which prevent the inner moisture from escaping. This enables such lizards as the 'desert swift' to live in a dry, scorching desert. Amphibians and reptiles resemble each other in that they are both cold-blooded—that is, their bodies must be warmed up from outside. Higher animals, such as birds and mammals, are warm-blooded, with bodies which maintain the right heat inside.

But its very small legs and long tubular body allow it to hide under leaves, stones or fallen trees. Needing moisture, salamanders are usually found near water. Lizards resemble salamanders in shape but are very different. They are reptiles, more advanced animals than the amphibians. Lizzards have five toes on the front foot to the salamander's four. And their bodies are encased in hard scales which prevent the inner moisture from escaping. This enables such lizards as the 'desert swift' to live in a dry, scorching desert. Amphibians and reptiles resemble each other in that they are both cold-blooded—that is, their bodies must be warmed up from outside. Higher animals, such as birds and mammals, are warm-blooded, with bodies which maintain the right heat inside.

Girl Injured As Cars Ram During Chase

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP)—A collision involving a car being chased by Youngstown police sent 18-year-old Linda Sue Leyman of Youngstown to the hospital with serious injuries early today.

Police said a car driven by 18-year-old Fernando Luis Ortiz slammed into Miss Leyman's at a south side intersection. The girl's car was ripped in half and the gas tank thrown 350 feet, police reported.

Ortiz escaped with a broken nose and cuts and bruises. He was held for questioning in the holdup of a young couple in a parking lot about 10 blocks from where the collision occurred.

Twenty-one-year - old George Rousher of Youngstown told police Ortiz robbed him and his girl friend, Carol Manrak of Youngstown, at knifepoint.

Police said Ortiz forced Rousher to drive him to nearby Boardman, where he put him out of the car and robbed him before forcing the girl to drive him back to the parking lot where Ortiz had left his own car.

Court Officials Get Warning On Traffic Reports

CHARLESTON (AP) — West Virginia Motor Vehicles Commissioner James K. Thomas warned court officials of the state Friday they are obligated to notify his department of traffic law convictions.

Thomas said the state's point system for drivers' licenses requires his department to keep a record of such convictions.

He estimated, however, that only about half the convictions for violation of traffic laws are being reported to the Motor Vehicles Department.

Last year, Thomas said, 53,156 violations were reported to his office. "But our investigations and spot checks lead me to believe we got only about half of them," he added.

Points are given for various types of traffic law convictions and when a driver receives a total of 12 his operators license can be suspended or revoked by Thomas.

Thomas emphasized state law requires that all courts—including municipal, police and justice of the peace—notify him of traffic convictions within 72 hours.

Failure to do so, he said, can result in a fine of from $10 to $50 and removal from office through legal proceedings.

Willshaw, commenting on a meeting held with City Council Friday night, said the men who appeared have agreed to submit written proposals for the city's consideration by the end of next week.

The four proposed operators were not named at this time.

During the meeting Thursday, the mayor reviewed with the council the problem which confronts the city. In most communities he has contacted, Willshaw pointed out, the municipalities signed contracts with private operators after funeral homes discontinued service. He said the cities usually subsidized the company which took over.

Ohio Military Chiefs Await Developments

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's Army National Guard and Reserve units were on shaky ground again today with the state's military leaders taking a "wait and see" attitude toward Pentagon plans for a major shakeup in operations.

Ohio's adjutant general, Maj. Gen. Erwin C. Hostetler, said he was "still in a state of shock" over Friday's announcement by the Defense Department that it planned to streamline the nation's Army National Guard and Reserve by eventually eliminating nearly 1,300 units.

"There is not a whole lot we can do, however," Hostetler added.

Tentative Pentagon plans, though not confirmed, call for elimination of the ONG's 37th Infantry Division. It would become a brigade in a new 38th Infantry Division, with headquarters and base in Indiana. Michigan also would supply a brigade for the 38th.

Disloyalty, Disobedience Charges

11-Year Sentence Faced By Levy After Conviction

BULLETIN

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP)—Capt. Howard B. Levy, the Army doctor who refused to train Vietnam - bound Green Beret medics, was dismissed from the Army today and sentenced to three years in prison for disloyalty and disobedience.

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Army Capt. Howard B. Levy, convicted by a court-martial of disloyalty and disobedience charges, faces a possible prison sentence of 11 years.

Levy, 30, Brooklyn-born dermatologist at Ft. Jackson Army Hospital, was convicted Friday of disobeying orders to train Green Beret medics and of promoting disloyalty among troops by making statements opposing U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

The 10-member tribunal of career Army officers, four of them Vietnam veterans, reconvenes today to consider defense arguments for a lighter sentence.

Levy's attorney, who had warned that a conviction might create a martyr for the peace movement, failed in attempts to prove that the Army doctor's disobedience was justified on claims that Green Beret troops committed war crimes in Vietnam and that Levy's medical ethics took precedence over Army orders.

The dark-haired Levy, wearing black-rimmed glasses and a khaki uniform, stood with hands clasped behind his back as the verdict was read by Col. John S. Baskin, president of the court, after nearly six hours of deliberation by the tribunal.

Levy was flanked by two of his attorneys, Capt. Charles M. Sassar Jr. of Ft. Jackson and Charles Morgan Jr. of the American Civil Liberties Union.

After hearing "We find you guilty" five times, Levy turned and took his seat at a table. His face showed no emotion. On a front row were his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Levy.

"Please don't ask me anything," said Mrs. Levy.

Levy got into a car and left without talking to newsmen.

Only a short time before, he had appeared to be in good spirits and joked with friends outside the yellow clapboard building at Ft. Jackson where his court-martial began May 10.

Someone asked him what he had wanted to do after completing his two years in the Army this July.

"Join Special Forces," he quipped, referring to the Green Beret troops he had refused to train.

Levy, who had taken part in Negro voter registration drives in this area, was convicted of making statements disloyal to the United States with the purpose of promoting disloyalty and disaffection among troops with Negro soldiers being a primary target.

The court -martial convicted Levy of:

Willful disobedience of an order between Oct. 11 and Nov. 25, 1966, to establish ond operate a program to train Green Beret medics in diagnosing and training skin diseases.

— Making disloyal statements, designed to promote disloyalty and disaffection. The Army charged Levy with saying the United States was wrong in Vietnam, that he would refuse to serve there. That Negro soldiers should refuse, and that Special Forces troops were "liars and thieves and killers of peasants and murderers of women and children."

— Making disloyal statements to Special Forces Troops.

— Conduct unbecoming an officer and a getleman by writing to a soldier in Vietnam in 1966 and opposing U.S. policy as "a diabolical evil."

Kiesinger Party Waits Vote Tally

HANNOVER, Germany (AP) — Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger's popularity gives his Christian Democrats hopes of emerging Sunday as the largest party in Lower Saxony.

Two parties—Kiesinger's Christian Democrats and Willy Brandt's Social Democrats—are coalition partners in the state Parliament here as well as in the national Parliament at Bonn.

The last election, four years ago, gave the Social Democrats 73 seats and the Christian Democrats 62. The Social Democrats have been the leading party 18 years.

Unless Kiesinger's party wins by a landslide in Sunday's election it will continue in a coalition. Eight parties in all are competing, but the only others with much chance for seats are the Free Democrats, who won 14 seats last time, and the rightist National Democrats.

Lower Saxony, in northern Germany, has a 300-mile frontier with East Germany. It has several industrial centers, including mining works near Brunswick and the Volkswagen plant at Wolfsburg.

Girl Injured As Cars Ram During Chase

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP)—A collision involving a car being chased by Youngstown police sent 18-year-old Linda Sue Leyman of Youngstown to the hospital with serious injuries early today.

Police said a car driven by 18-year-old Fernando Luis Ortiz slammed into Miss Leyman's at a south side intersection. The girl's car was ripped in half and the gas tank thrown 350 feet, police reported.

Ortiz escaped with a broken nose and cuts and bruises. He was held for questioning in the holdup of a young couple in a parking lot about 10 blocks from where the collision occurred.

Twenty-one-year - old George Rousher of Youngstown told police Ortiz robbed him and his girl friend, Carol Manrak of Youngstown, at knifepoint.

Police said Ortiz forced Rousher to drive him to nearby Boardman, where he put him out of the car and robbed him before forcing the girl to drive him back to the parking lot where Ortiz had left his own car.

Court Officials Get Warning On Traffic Reports

CHARLESTON (AP) — West Virginia Motor Vehicles Commissioner James K. Thomas warned court officials of the state Friday they are obligated to notify his department of traffic law convictions.

Thomas said the state's point system for drivers' licenses requires his department to keep a record of such convictions.

He estimated, however, that only about half the convictions for violation of traffic laws are being reported to the Motor Vehicles Department.

Last year, Thomas said, 53,156 violations were reported to his office. "But our investigations and spot checks lead me to believe we got only about half of them," he added.

Points are given for various types of traffic law convictions and when a driver receives a total of 12 his operators license can be suspended or revoked by Thomas.

Thomas emphasized state law requires that all courts—including municipal, police and justice of the peace—notify him of traffic convictions within 72 hours.

Failure to do so, he said, can result in a fine of from $10 to $50 and removal from office through legal proceedings.

The four proposed operators were not named at this time.

During the meeting Thursday, the mayor reviewed with the council the problem which confronts the city. In most communities he has contacted, Willshaw pointed out, the municipalities signed contracts with private operators after funeral homes discontinued service. He said the cities usually subsidized the company which took over.

Ohio Military Chiefs Await Developments

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's Army National Guard and Reserve units were on shaky ground again today with the state's military leaders taking a "wait and see" attitude toward Pentagon plans for a major shakeup in operations.

Ohio's adjutant general, Maj. Gen. Erwin C. Hostetler, said he was "still in a state of shock" over Friday's announcement by the Defense Department that it planned to streamline the nation's Army National Guard and Reserve by eventually eliminating nearly 1,300 units.

"There is not a whole lot we can do, however," Hostetler added.

Tentative Pentagon plans, though not confirmed, call for elimination of the ONG's 37th Infantry Division. It would become a brigade in a new 38th Infantry Division, with headquarters and base in Indiana. Michigan also would supply a brigade for the 38th.

Disloyalty, Disobedience Charges

BULLETIN

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP)—Capt. Howard B. Levy, the Army doctor who refused to train Vietnam - bound Green Beret medics, was dismissed from the Army today and sentenced to three years in prison for disloyalty and disobedience.

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Army Capt. Howard B. Levy, convicted by a court-martial of disloyalty and disobedience charges, faces a possible prison sentence of 11 years.

Levy, 30, Brooklyn-born dermatologist at Ft. Jackson Army Hospital, was convicted Friday of disobeying orders to train Green Beret medics and of promoting disloyalty among troops by making statements opposing U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

The 10-member tribunal of career Army officers, four of them Vietnam veterans, reconvenes today to consider defense arguments for a lighter sentence.

Levy's attorney, who had warned that a conviction might create a martyr for the peace movement, failed in attempts to prove that the Army doctor's disobedience was justified on claims that Green Beret troops committed war crimes in Vietnam and that Levy's medical ethics took precedence over Army orders.

The dark-haired Levy, wearing black-rimmed glasses and a khaki uniform, stood with hands clasped behind his back as the verdict was read by Col. John S. Baskin, president of the court, after nearly six hours of deliberation by the tribunal.

Levy was flanked by two of his attorneys, Capt. Charles M. Sassar Jr. of Ft. Jackson and Charles Morgan Jr. of the American Civil Liberties Union.

After hearing "We find you guilty" five times, Levy turned and took his seat at a table. His face showed no emotion. On a front row were his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Levy.

"Please don't ask me anything," said Mrs. Levy.

Levy got into a car and left without talking to newsmen.

Only a short time before, he had appeared to be in good spirits and joked with friends outside the yellow clapboard building at Ft. Jackson where his court-martial began May 10.

Someone asked him what he had wanted to do after completing his two years in the Army this July.

"Join Special Forces," he quipped, referring to the Green Beret troops he had refused to train.

Levy, who had taken part in Negro voter registration drives in this area, was convicted of making statements disloyal to the United States with the purpose of promoting disloyalty and disaffection among troops with Negro soldiers being a primary target.

The court -martial convicted Levy of:

Willful disobedience of an order between Oct. 11 and Nov. 25, 1966, to establish ond operate a program to train Green Beret medics in diagnosing and training skin diseases.

— Making disloyal statements, designed to promote disloyalty and disaffection. The Army charged Levy with saying the United States was wrong in Vietnam, that he would refuse to serve there. That Negro soldiers should refuse, and that Special Forces troops were "liars and thieves and killers of peasants and murderers of women and children."

— Making disloyal statements to Special Forces Troops.

— Conduct unbecoming an officer and a getleman by writing to a soldier in Vietnam in 1966 and opposing U.S. policy as "a diabolical evil."

Kiesinger Party Waits Vote Tally

HANNOVER, Germany (AP) — Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger's popularity gives his Christian Democrats hopes of emerging Sunday as the largest party in Lower Saxony.

Two parties—Kiesinger's Christian Democrats and Willy Brandt's Social Democrats—are coalition partners in the state Parliament here as well as in the national Parliament at Bonn.

The last election, four years ago, gave the Social Democrats 73 seats and the Christian Democrats 62. The Social Democrats have been the leading party 18 years.

Unless Kiesinger's party wins by a landslide in Sunday's election it will continue in a coalition. Eight parties in all are competing, but the only others with much chance for seats are the Free Democrats, who won 14 seats last time, and the rightist National Democrats.

Lower Saxony, in northern Germany, has a 300-mile frontier with East Germany. It has several industrial centers, including mining works near Brunswick and the Volkswagen plant at Wolfsburg.
